INTRODUCTION

IN presenting this work to interested readers it might be well to inform them that it is the result of nearly twenty years of patient research, under very great obstacles, by one who is himself a direct descendant from John Livermore, the emigrant. As far as it lay in his power all available means have been utilized to obtain information. All public records within his reach have been searched, including National, State, County, City and Town books, Family Bibles and Genealogies. Many members of the family have helped as far as possible, not only willingly but eagerly, and to them the author would extend his grateful thanks. There are many families of whom it has been impossible to obtain information, and this will account for many omissions in these records. Some may ask why no attempt has been made to carry the family back beyond John, the emigrant. It is because it would require a personal search in England, which the author was unable to make, and also because of the incompleteness of their records.

Many of the name and descent have a national reputation, among them being Hon. Samuel Livermore, a representative in the first Continental Congress, and representative and senator in the first Congress of the United States, who was also a leader of the New Hampshire bar, in whose footsteps followed his two sons, Edward St. Loe and Arthur, Judge Fidus Livermore, of the Michigan bar, Capt. Daniel Livermore, a soldier of the Revolution, Col. Thomas L. Livermore, a soldier of the Civil war, and Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Vice-President of the United States, whose mother was a Livermore.

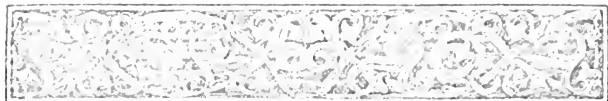

In designating the births in the third and fourth generations especially, it may be well to remember that in the earliest years of its settlement, Watertown extended from the Cambridge line to that of the town of Sudbury. Weston was set off from Watertown in 1712, Waltham in 1737, and Belmont in 1859. In many cases it seems as if the father was born in Watertown, and the son in either Weston or Waltham, but in reality on the same farm, or close to it. There are now in the United States several families not descended from John Livermore, the emigrant, but who have come to this country since 1800.

The following towns were named for different members of the family: Livermore, Me.; Livermore, N. H.; Livermore, Penn.; Livermore, Ky.; Livermore, Io.; Livermore, Cal., and Livermore, Col.

With regard to the matter of arranging the order and descent of generations and families, the plan adopted in this work comprises a full list of the children of each head of a family directly under a sketch of his or her life. Where the information concerning these children is small, and their posterity not numerous, the whole record is generally given at once; where otherwise, the name is designated by a number, and this number carried forward and placed on a subsequent page in a line by itself, marks the starting point of a new family. The names enclosed in parentheses at the beginning of each new family, and printed in italics, carry the line back to the original ancestor, in genealogical order, as designated by the figures at the right of each name and above the line. These small figures at the right of family names should be carefully noted in tracing out each record. In a few instances the author has received conflicting records from different sources, and has used those which were sent by the person evidently more acquainted with the facts.

Where the name of the State in which a town is situated is not given, Massachusetts is to be understood, except where a town in some other State is mentioned more than once in the same paragraph, in which case the State is not repeated.

FIRST GENERATION

JOHN<sup>t</sup> LIVERMORE, the ancestor of nearly all the Livermores in the United States, embarked at Ipswich, England, for New England, the last of April, 1634, then aged 28 years, in the "Francis," John Cutting, master, a large portion of the passengers settling in Watertown, Mass. In the list of passengers his name was spelt John Lyuermore. He had previously married, in England, Grace Sherman, a daughter of Edmond Sherman* and Grace Makin, who had lived both in Dedham and Colchester, County Essex. Her father came to New England in 1634, and died in New Haven, Ct., about 1641. There is a tradition that he came over without his wife, and that afterwards she came with one or more children about 1637.

He was admitted freeman May 6, 1635; on the list his name is written Leathermore. It is on a list of very early proprietors of Watertown; this is not dated, but contains the names of many of those who went to Wethersfield, Ct., and Dedham, Mass., in 1635 and 1636. In 1635 he removed to Wethersfield, with other Watertown people, and in 1638 or '39 he removed to Quinnipiac, now New Haven, being one of the original settlers, where he was June 4, 1639.

* Genealogical Notes of New York and New England Families, by S. V. Talcott, page 684, under No. 25. Waters' Gleanings in England.

The first notice of him in Connecticut was in 1639, when he, then of New Haven, signed the fundamental agreement of the New Haven Colony. In the first "seating the meeting house" in 1642, seats were assigned to John Livermore and to "sister Livermore." From the rule for assessing in New Haven, it appears that John Livermore had a wife and two children when he went there or soon after, as he was rated for four persons (not including servants) and £100 estate. His home lot, which has been identified, was on the west side of Fleet street, next but one to the harbor. He was by trade a potter, and was repeatedly a selectman, and held other offices of trust.

His autograph may be seen in vol. i: page 1, of the Colonial Records of New Haven. He was admitted a member of the Court of Elections (made a freeman of the colony) Oct. 29, 1640, and took the oath of allegiance July 1, 1644. He had liberty to cut wood on "the neck" in 1645. On June 11, 1645, it was proposed that another "ordinary" might "be set up towards the waterside" and it was "left with John Livermore to consider it."* About May 25, 1646, he was there and was called corporal. On May 4, 1647, he resigned his position as corporal.

His wife was present at a meeting of the General Court held Mar. 10, 1646. On May 16, 1647, Joseph Nash was chosen corporal "in room of John Livermore who expects to go to England." His name does not appear in the records again until January, 1649, after an interval of about twenty months, and it is probable that he was in England.

On May 7, 1650, John Livermore hath sould and passeth to Theophilus Higginson, his house and house lot  $\frac{1}{2}$  acre and 10 perches; 8 acres  $\frac{1}{4}$ , 15 rods on this side the West River, next the land of Richard Beach;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  acres 25 rods, on the other side the West River, next Milford highway, by the meadow side; 28 acres of the 2d division, betwixt the lands of Edward Banister and Richard Osborn; 5 acres of meadow in the West Meadow, next meadow of Henry Gibbons; 3 acres of meadow in Solitary Cove, with the workhouses with the land belonging to them; bounded with stump of a tree next the sea, running along the creek to the end of the house—being in breadth so wide as the house is. [Col. Rec., New Haven, ii: page 18.]

He probably left New Haven about the date of this sale. He was a juror in Watertown in July, 1653. According to a "Map of the Original Allotments of land in Watertown proper, compiled and drawn by Henry Bond, M. D.," John Livermore owned a lot of 2 acres on the easterly side of Fresh Pond, and, at a short distance west of the pond, two other lots, one of 18 acres and one of 13 acres, which he had bought of William Paine. He also owned lot 11 of the First Great Dividend, containing 70 acres, which he bought of William Paine and bequeathed it to his son Nathaniel. He also owned lot 11 of the Fourth Great Dividend, containing 25 acres, afterwards sold to Miles Nutt; also one acre of meadow land at Beaverbrook. He was chosen constable, Nov. 6, 1654, and held that office for several years. In 1655 he was fined two shillings because he owned two disorderly hogs. In 1666 he made a complaint against the town for rating him for his trade, and a committee of the selectmen was appointed to tender him a hearing before any indifferent man or men of his own choosing; but he refused and would not attend it. He was a selectman of Watertown in 1665, '66, '67, '68 and '69, and one of the prudential committee in 1668. He died April 14, 1684, in Watertown, aged 78. His will, proved June 16, 1684, is as follows:—

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF JOHN LIVERMORE OF WATERTOWN AGED SEVENTY SEAVEN OR EIGHT YEARS.

In the name of God amen I John Livermore being Weak in Body and under the Infirmities of old age, yet throu the goodnes of god of perfect memory and of a disposing mind doe make and ordain this my Last Will and Testament as Followeth

4

JOHN<sup>2</sup> LIVERMORE (John<sup>1</sup>), was born about 1638, probably in Wethersfield, Ct.; he died Feb. 9, 1719, in Weston, aged 80 years; he married (1) Hannah —, the mother of all his children; married (2) Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. John and Sarah (Busby) Grout of Sudbury, and widow of Samuel Allen by whom she had had five children; she was born in Sudbury about 1666, and died May 30, 1732. John was made a freeman April 18, 1690. He lived on the Cowpen farm (mentioned in the inventory of his father's estate) in that part of Watertown called Watertown Farms, now Weston, and near the Sudbury line. The Cowpen farm was bounded N. by land of Robert Jennison and John Sawin; W. by that of Robert Jennison; E. by that of R. Jennison and Nathaniel Greene (son and heir of Rev. Henry Greene); S. by that of Capt. Hugh Mason. The twenty acres of meadow belonging to it were near Nonesuch Meadow.

He was a tythingman in 1679; he was a selectman of Watertown in 1692 and collector of rates in 1692 and 1693; assessor in 1695. Oct. 22, 1695, John Grout, Sr., of Sudbury, conveyed to his son-in-law, John Livermore of Watertown Farms, a tract of land situated between Dedham line, Watertown line and Sudbury line, adjoining partly 200 acres granted by the General Court to William Jennison of Watertown, bounded S. by Dedham line; N. by Sudbury line; E. by Watertown line; W. by the 200 acres above mentioned, now (1860) in the possession of Matthew Rice. Nov. 21, 1712, John Livermore conveyed this tract of land to his four daughters, Hannah Rice, Sarah Fulham, Martha Gleason and Mary Bigelow.

He was a soldier in the Mt. Hope campaign in King Phillip's war, for which service he was paid £2. 08. 06 on Aug. 27, 1675. He was called a lieutenant and also ensign. His will, dated Oct. 20, 1714, proved Feb. 25, 1719.

Children, born in Watertown :

- i. John,<sup>3</sup> b. Mar. 21, 1668; d. Oct. 2, 1683, in Watertown.
- ii. Hannah, b. Sept. 27, 1670; m. Feb. 22, 1689, Ephraim Rice of Sudbury, and had 13 children.

MATTHEW<sup>4</sup> LIVERMORE (Samuel,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Jan. 14, 1703, in Watertown; died Feb. 14, 1776, in Portsmouth, N. H.; married Aug. 2, 1733, in Portsmouth, Mary, daughter of Rev. Nathaniel and Sarah (Purkiss) Rogers. He graduated from Harvard College in 1722, and taught school in Waltham until 1726, as he was paid for his services as schoolmaster £12 in 1722, £22 in 1724, £59, in full, in 1726. About this time he moved to Portsmouth, where he kept the grammar school seven years. He was admitted to the bar in 1731, at which time there was no regularly educated lawyer in Portsmouth. He practiced extensively in Maine and New Hampshire. He was Attorney General of the Province and King's Advocate in the Admiralty Court; the latter office and probably the former also, he appears to have retained for about twenty-nine years. He was afterwards Judge of the Superior Court of New Hampshire. He built, about 1730, a house on Pleasant Street, having an open yard in front. More than fifty years later Livermore Street, named after this family, was opened, and the house moved to a position on this street. Within a few years it has been moved again across the street. In 1752 he became a member of the Legislature, and was chosen clerk thereof, and so continued until 1755.

JONATHAN<sup>4</sup> LIVERMORE (Jouathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Aug. 16, 1700, in Watertown; died April 21, 1801, in Northboro, having lived to the extraordinary age of 100 years, 8 months and 5 days, thus living in three centuries. He married (1) June 23, 1723, Abigail, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Fiske) Ball, born June 5, 1702. He married (2) Nov. 16, 1775, Jane Dunlap. About 1727 he moved to Northboro, and settled on the Brown farm, so called. He was dismissed from Watertown, April 8, 1729. He possessed uncommon learning for his time, was an accurate surveyor and an excellent penman, owing to which circumstance the early records of the town appear in a remarkably fine state. He was the first parish or town clerk, which office he held many years; one of the first deacons of the Congregational church, resigning Oct. 2, 1782; he was much employed in public business, in surveying, laying out townships, etc., and was selectman in 1750, '55, '58 and '64. He was moderator in Westboro in 1758 and '64. A short time after he was 100 years old he rode on horseback from his house to a military review, near the middle of the town, a distance of three miles, and returned without fatigue.

Children, the first three born in Watertown, the others in Northboro:

- 88. i. Abigail,<sup>5</sup> b. April 10, 1724.

SAMUEL<sup>4</sup> LIVERMORE (Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born March 14, 1702, in Watertown; died Aug. 7, 1773, in Waltham. He married (1) Nov. 10, 1726, in Watertown, Hannah, daughter of William and Hannah (Pease) Brown, born Jan. 22, 1707; died Nov. 2, 1762, in Waltham. She was the mother of all his children. He married (2) Jan. 22, 1765, in Waltham, Hannah, widow of Daniel Harrington; died Dec. 31, 1765, aged 44 years; he married (3) May 7, 1767, in Waltham, widow Joanna Felton of Watertown, died Sept. 5, 1767, aged 46 years; he married (4) March 15, 1770, in Waltham, Thankful, widow of Richard Cutting, daughter of George and Abiel (Parker) Harrington, born Jan. 25, 1720; died Nov. 4, 1772. He inherited by will the estate of his great uncle Nathaniel Livermore, which has since been well known as "the Lyman farm" in Waltham. The old Livermore house stood northeast of the mansion house of Theodore Lyman; it was occupied by Mark Vose, in the employ of Mr. Lyman, and was valued at $560. This house was afterwards removed to Main street. The land of the Lyman place is supposed to have been the fifty acres of land in the First Great Dividend granted to William Paine, and bought of him by John Livermore.

At the first town meeting in Waltham, held on Wednesday, Jan. 18, 1738, he was chosen town clerk and treasurer; and at the first regular meeting, held March 26, 1738, he was chosen town clerk and treasurer and also assessor. At this meeting it was voted, that Samuel Livermore should have the use of the first pew east of the pulpit as long as the meeting-house stood upon his land, in full satisfaction for the same. At a meeting held Sept. 25, 1738, he was chosen sexton and granted three pounds for his annual services. He had for a long time the greatest share of the municipal business of the town; was selectman 22 years, 1743-64; representative, 1745-63, with the exception of 1748; assessor, 1738-56; town clerk and treasurer 26 years, 1738-63; moderator of town meetings 24 years, 1740-64; was also a deacon of the church. March 2, 1744, Capt. Samuel Livermore represented to the selectmen of Waltham that there were under his command ninety men, and that the State law required them to have a stock of ammunition, amounting to 150 pounds of powder, 300 pounds of bullets, and 450 flints. Sept. 9, 1745, the town voted that Capt. Livermore "should address the Great and General Court in the name and behalfe of the Town of Waltham that the millers might have liberty to keep up their mill Dams as formerly." The salaries of the town officers for the year 1750 seem, from the appropriation, to have amounted to 13*s.* 4*d.*, and this sum was wholly awarded to Capt. Livermore,—8*s.* as town clerk, and 5*s.* 4*d.* as treasurer. His signature is on page 74 of Nelson's History of Waltham.

He was twice chosen as a surveyor of highways in Leicester. The town furnished five men, in 1756, as her quota in a call for one thousand men from Worcester and Hampshire counties. Their names were Ezekiel Bellows, Jacob Wicker, Jason Livermore, David Wicker and John Wicker. These men were in the command of Gen. Ruggles, and saw service at Crown Point, Fort Edward and Ticonderoga. Inscription on his powder-horn says: "Jason Livermore his horn made at fort Edward August y<sup>e</sup> 29. 1759." On his return from that unsuccessful and unfortunate expedition, he came by land through the wilderness, with two or three companions, and suffered hardships and privations from cold and hunger.

In 1765 that part of Leicester in which he lived, with a part of Rutland, was incorporated as a district by the name of Paxton. The first town meeting of Paxton was held March 11, 1765, at the house of Mr. John Snow, when Jason Livermore was chosen constable. He was an active and prominent man in Paxton, having aided in procuring the act of incorporation, and assisted in building the first meeting-house. He was one of the members of the first Congregational church organized in the town.

When the news reached Paxton that the "regulars" had attacked Concord and Lexington, Jason Livermore and his three sons, Jason, William, and Josiah, were plowing in the field, and learning that the company of minute men (Capt. Willard Moore's), of which they were members, would march forthwith, the father said, "Boys, unyoke the cattle and let us be off." No sooner said than done, and they at once made ready, with the household pewter dishes melted into bullets, and marched to Cambridge, and there joined the Continental army, being attached to Col. Doolittle's regiment. On June 17, 1775, under command of Major Willard Moore, then in charge of the regiment, they took part in the battle of Bunker Hill, where Major Moore was killed. The wife and mother, left at home with a son only twelve years of age, continued the farm work, besides excavating the earth under the barn and other buildings, and from it obtaining more than one hundred pounds of nitre or saltpetre, for the purpose of making gunpowder, of which there was great need in the army.

Jason Livermore and Samuel Brewer of Sutton raised a company of volunteers in Paxton and Sutton, of which he was the second in command, and marched on the 9th of August, 1776, from Paxton to Charlestown No. 4, in New Hampshire, thence to Ticonderoga and Mount Hope, where they were stationed for some time. After the close of the war he retired to his farm, where he passed the rest of his life.

MOSES<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (Josiah,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born July 14, 1729, in Weston; died Oct. 18, 1797, in Spencer; married Jan. 31, 1750, in Weston, Hannah, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth Allen, born there July 28, 1731. She survived him and moved to Lisle, N. Y., with her son Moses, in 1817, where she died. After the birth of his first child he moved to Spencer, and settled on lot 77. In a list of 68 landholders in Spencer in 1771, he is rated as the ninth in valuation of property; he was one of the majority of grand jurors at the Supreme Judicial Court holden at Worcester in April, 1774, who signed a declaration and presented it to the Court, stating that they should not proceed to business if Chief Justice Oliver, who was a tory, should sit on the bench and preside. Judge Oliver, however, did not appear, and the jury discharged their duty. He was one of the committee of correspondence, inspection and safety, in 1775.

ABRAHAM<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (Daniel,<sup>4</sup> Daniel,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Aug. 13, 1749, in Weston; died March 11, 1826, in German, N. Y.; married April 9, 1772, in Weston, Hephzibeth Williams, born Jan. 6, 1754; died Jan. 28, 1850, in Paris Hill, N. Y. He lived for many years in Pelham, and was a town officer there in 1778. In the winter of 1775-76 he was a private in the company of militia under the command of Elijah Dwight of Belchertown, doing camp duty in Roxbury and vicinity. The records of Pelham say that he carried provisions to the army in Cambridge, in 1777. After the close of the Revolution he lost his property by the depreciation of the Continental currency, and in 1795 left Pelham and emigrated to New York State, taking with him his family, which consisted of his wife and nine children. He halted for a few months in Paris, N. Y., where he left his family while, in the spring of 1796, with an axe, he made his way, through the forest, by means of marked trees, to what was then the township of Brackel, but afterwards renamed German, where he took up the whole of lot No. 92, containing 153 acres and 36 perches. He received a deed for this farm from the proprietors (Dutchmen), who were then living in Amsterdam, Holland, dated Jan. 13, 1816, the consideration being $383.00; Feb. 20, 1826, only a short time before he died, he sold this farm to his son Martin. He was one of the first settlers in the town, and his family joined him as soon as he built his house. That part of the town was afterwards known as Livermore's Corners, on the old State road, much travelled by emigrants to western New York. From their isolated position in the wilderness, remote from any settlement, the Cleveland and Livermore families suffered great privation and hardships during the first years of their settlement. He kept the first inn in German, and by industry and economy accumulated a respectable property and reared a large family.

ISAAC<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (Isaac,<sup>4</sup> Daniel,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Dec. 20, 1746, in Leicester; died there Jan. 19, 1836; married Dec. 24, 1776, in Leicester, Hannah Bulin, died there Jan. 26, 1836. He marched from Leicester to Cambridge, in Capt. Thomas Newhall's company, on the alarm of April 19, 1775, and soon after his arrival in Cambridge left this company and joined that of Capt. Seth Washburn, in Col. Ward's regiment. He was with the latter company when it took part in the battle of Bunker Hill. It came upon the hill at the close of the fight, and helped cover the retreat from the redoubt. He had provided himself, among other creature comforts, with a small quantity of rum, which he carried in a canteen at his side, and perceived while on his retreat that a ball from the enemy had cut the string by which it hung; looking for the canteen he discovered it in rapid progress toward the enemy, who were approaching by a flank movement. With a desperate determination that "he would be darned if the regulars should have his rum," he coolly turned and followed his canteen until he overtook it, and brought it off amidst a shower of bullets that whistled around him.

OLIVER<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (Oliver,<sup>4</sup> Daniel,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born July 15, 1735, in Watertown; died June 16, 1782, in Shirley; married June 22, 1758, in Watertown, Catherine, daughter of Jonas and Hannah (Bright) Bond, born there March 22, 1737; died June 11, 1800, in Shirley. They settled first in Watertown; about 1767 they moved to Shirley, and bought the farm recently owned by Sidney Benjamin, where he lived until he died. He had a higher intellectual standing than the average man of his time. In the midst of active life, during the American Revolution, he lent his aid on the side of the patriots. He, however, manifested greater prudence than warmth, and thus in a measure incurred the suspicion of his fellow-citizens; nevertheless, they intrusted him with important official duties. In 1778 and 1779 he was one of the selectmen; for eight years he was the treasurer of the town, and died while in that office.

Children, the first four born in Watertown, the others in Shirley :

- i. Catherine,<sup>6</sup> b. Aug. 25, 1759; d. in 1781, unm.

DANIEL<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (David,<sup>4</sup> Daniel,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 7, 1749, in Watertown; died June 22, 1798, in Concord, N. H.; married either in Dec., 1785 or Jan., 1786, in Concord, N. H., Sarah, eldest daughter of Hon. Timothy Walker, born there Jan. 21, 1764; died Oct. 17, 1843, in Cambridge. After the death of his father he lived some years with his uncle, Dea. Obadiah Kimball of Bradford. About 1763 he became an apprentice to his uncle, Dea. John Kimball, a carpenter of Concord, N. H. At the beginning of the Revolution (in 1775) he entered the army as an ensign, serving in that capacity in the battle of Bunker Hill, in Capt. Gordon Hutchins' company, in Col. John Stark's regiment, known as the 5th company in the 3d regiment of foot. In Jan., 1776, he was first lieutenant in Capt. Woodbury's company, in Col. Stark's regiment. He was appointed captain in the 3d N. H. regiment, June 16, 1779, taking rank as such from Nov. 8, 1776, and was in command of the regiment (though with the rank of captain) at West Point, May 10, 1780.

The first white men to visit Owego, N. Y., of whom we have any account, were a portion of Gen. Sullivan's army, in 1779. On Aug. 17, in that year, Capt. Daniel Livermore of the 3d N. H. regiment of Gen. Poor's brigade, with a detachment of 900 men from Gen. Sullivan's army, marched up the Susquehanna River from Tioga Point (Athens, Pa.), to meet Gen. Clinton's expedition of 1500 men, which was coming down from Otsego Lake. At Owego, Capt. Livermore destroyed the Indian village which was on the river's bank, at and below William Street, and which consisted of about twenty wigwams, the natives having fled on the approach of the troops. Two days afterward they effected a union with Clinton's army at Charamuk (Choconut, about one and one-half miles above Union), and the entire body then marched to Owego, arriving Aug. 19, and remaining encamped there two days on account of rainy weather. This was the expedition sent to chastise the British, Indians, and Tories, for the horrible massacre and barbarous atrocities committed at Wyoming and Cherry Valley.

Capt. Livermore kept a diary from May 17 to Dec. 7, 1779, which has been published in the sixth volume of the Collections of the N. H. Hist. Society, and which is herewith given :

JOURNAL.

Monday, May 17, 1779. This day at eight o'clock the remaining part of Gen. Poor's brigade leave Soldier's Fortune and march on the Western Expedition. At three o'clock, P. M., halt at Fishkill, where we dine, twelve miles from our old quarters. At five P. M., march for the Ferry, which we make about sunset; five miles from town. Col. Read's regiment cross the North River this evening. Col. Dearborn's take quarters for the night on the east side. Nothing remarkable happens during the day. Seventeen miles.

Tuesday, May 18. This morning, the weather being fair, we proceed to conveying our baggage and stores over the river, to Newburg Landing, which was completed at about twelve o'clock. Here the troops refresh. At two o'clock P. M., are ready to march, near which time Gen. Poor arrives from New Hampshire. The troops now proceed on their march by the way of New-Windsor, three miles; thence to Bethlehem, nine miles. Put up at Maj. Deboyse's. This place is in the State of New-York, and County of Orange. The country is not very good in general, although some of the farms are very fine. Nothing material has happened this day. Twelve miles.

Wednesday, May 19. This morning the troops march, at seven o'clock, through a very fertile part of the country, and make a short halt at Blooms Grove Church, five miles. From thence proceed on our march five miles, to a small village called Chester. Here we halt an hour. The weather proves rainy, but we proceed on the march three miles, and are then obliged to put up for the night, by reason of the bad weather, in very disagreeable quarters. The country during this day's march is exceedingly good, but the inhabitants are not friendly. Nothing remarkable happens this day. Thirteen miles.

Thursday, May 20. This morning the weather still continues rainy; necessity obliges us to continue the march. The travelling is exceedingly bad. At nine o'clock make a halt at a small village called Warwick, six miles. Here we take breakfast at Beard's tavern, from whence we proceed on the march to Hardiston, seven miles. During this day's march we went past but few farms of any consequence. The land is not fertile, but on both sides of the valley very mountainous and broken. At about four, P. M., we arrived at the aforementioned place. The weather continues rainy. Put up at Hinksman's, formerly a tavern, but now a torified house. Nothing remarkable happens during this day. Thirteen miles.

Friday, May 21. The weather continues rainy. The troops lie by in their disagreeable quarters. Nothing remarkable happens during this day.

Saturday, May 22. This day the troops lie by for want of provisions, and are employed in washing and drying their clothes. Nothing remarkable happens this day, except a dispute which arose between the landlord and some of the officers, on account of the uncivil treatment they received from him, which was carried to no small height. N. B. — A Tory.

Sunday, May 23. This morning the troops march at five o'clock. Proceed on their march seven miles, to the sign of the Ball. Here make a short halt. This is about two miles from New-York line, in the State of New-Jersey. We soon march on a few miles farther, and halt four hours in the heat of the day. At two o'clock proceed on the march through a mountainous, poor country, having but few inhabitants. At six o'clock arrive at Sussex State House where we put up for the night. This is a small village consisting of about ten decent houses, with a large State House, built of stone. In the north-east part of the town the people are chiefly of the English descent, but the greater part are not friendly to our cause. We put up at Prentice's tavern, and had very good treatment. I passed the evening very agreeably with our own corps of officers, and Mr. Abial Frye. Nothing remarkable happens during this day. So ends the twenty-four hours. Twenty-two miles.

Monday, May 24. This morning, at about seven o'clock, the troops proceed on their march for Easton. We make but very few halts during this day's march. At about five P. M., we arrive at a small village called Moravian Mills, or Oxford. This place is pleasantly situated, lying on a small river, on which stands the most curious corn mill I ever saw. The inhabitants are of that denomination of people called Moravians. They are of a kind and benevolent disposition. The curiosities of this place are worthy of notice; their water works in particular form a large fountain opposite the town, on a hill. The water is carried under ground down the hill and through the bottom of the river, to a considerable of an eminence on the opposite side. During the preceding day's march we travelled through an indifferent country. The people were chiefly of the Dutch descent. Nothing remarkable happens during this day's march. Sixteen miles.

Tuesday, May 25. This morning the troops march early. Make a short halt at Carr's Tavern, five miles; from whence we proceed on the march and make but few stops till we halt for the night. The troops encamp on the edge of a wood, on the left hand, near Col. Bond's. This night we lie on the ground in the open air. Sometime in the night it rains and makes it very uncomfortable. During the preceding day's march the weather was very hot. The country on the right hand is fertile. Some exceeding fine farms between the road and the river Delaware, which is from five to two miles distant. During the day's march nothing remarkable happens. Seventeen miles.

Wednesday, May 26. This morning the troops march early. At eight o'clock arrive at Easton Ferry, five miles. We then proceed to conveying the troops and baggage over the Delaware, which is completed at about ten o'clock. This day the troops are supplied with tents, and encamp on the south-east side of the town, on the banks of the river Lehigh, which empties itself at this place into the Delaware. The town of Easton is pleasantly situated, on a level plat of ground, on a point made by the Delaware and Lehigh. The buildings in this place are plain, and built of stone. Their State House is built in the centre of the town, where four roads meet. It is built of stone and lime, and makes an elegant appearance. They have one house of worship, near the State House. It is built of hewn stone; large and elegant, with a large organ. The inhabitants are chiefly Low-Dutch, and they worship wholly in that way. There are some few Jews living here, who are the principal merchants of the place.

Thursday, May 27; Friday, 28; Saturday, 29, and Sunday, 30. Nothing material happens. We lie by, having little to do; spend our time in fishing and other sort of diversions.

Monday, May 31. This day I set out on a party of pleasure to Bethlehem, in company with a number of gentlemen, officers of the brigade. Had an elegant dinner, after which we walked out and took a survey of the town and its curiosities. The town of Bethlehem is a small, compact town, lying on the river Lehigh, about twelve miles from Easton. It lies on a small descent towards the south-east, and is pleasantly situated. The inhabitants are all Low-Dutch, and of that denomination called Moravians. They are much bigoted in their ways of worship, as also in their method of living. Their buildings are not elegant, though decent, and built wholly of stone and lime. They have but one place of public worship, and perform in the Dutch language, and one house of entertainment, which is supplied out of the public fund. Nothing extraordinary happens this day.

Tuesday, June 1. Nothing remarkable happens this day. We lay in camp, having little exercise.

Wednesday, June 2; Thursday, 3; Friday, 4; Saturday, 5; Sunday, 6, and Monday, 7. Nothing remarkable happens.

Tuesday, June 8. This day the troops are reviewed by Gen. Sullivan. They parade on the banks of the river Lehigh, about one mile from the town, on very disagreeable ground. Nothing remarkable happens during this day.

Wednesday, June 9. This day the two remaining regiments of Gen. Poor's brigade decamp and move up the river about one mile. There encamp on the banks, on good ground. Nothing remarkable happens during this day.

Thursday, June 10. This day the troops parade at four, P. M., for exercise; march to town and go through various manoeuvres, in forming and displaying columns, crossing defiles, &c. Nothing remarkable happens this day.

Friday, June 11. This day, at four o'clock, the troops march to town for exercise, and perform several manoeuvres of displaying columns and reducing platoons to rank entire, and forming the same. Nothing remarkable happens this day. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Saturday, June 12. This day, at four, P. M., the troops parade to attend the execution of three criminals, inhabitants of this State, convicted of murder and highway robbery. They were tried before the civil authority, and have been under sentence eleven months. Nothing more worthy of notice this day.

Sunday, June 13. This day, one of the criminals executed yesterday was dug up and dissected, of which I was a spectator. Nothing further worthy of notice this day.

Monday, June 14; Tuesday, 15; Wednesday, 16, and Thursday, 17. Nothing worthy of notice happens. We follow our diversions while we stay at this place.

Friday, June 18. This morning, at four o'clock, the troops strike their tents and load their baggage, in order for marching at seven o'clock. With much regret we take our leave of that pleasant town, and pursue our intended expedition. We march on seven miles, through an indifferent part of the country. Here the troops halt and take breakfast. We then pursue our march, and travel through the poorest country I ever saw—so bad that even bushes can't grow thereon. About five P. M., we encamp near Hill's tavern, in Hillstown. Nothing remarkable during this day's march. Twelve miles.

Saturday, June 19. This morning the troops march early, and pass the Wind-gap, so called, for its being the only pass for a number of miles through the long chain of mountains that extend to the southernmost part of the Continent, called the — mountains. We continue our march through a very barren and mountainous part of the country, and make a halt at Brinker's Mills, seven miles. Here we breakfast, from whence we proceed on the march and make few halts till we halt for the night at Leonard's tavern, in Poconogo, nine miles, and the last house on that road till we came within seven miles of Susquehanna. Nothing remarkable happens during this day's march. Sixteen miles.

Sunday, June 20. This morning the troops march at eight o'clock; leave Poconogo, and proceed to Chowder Camp, where we encamp for the night, five miles. This day we march through a barren, mountainous country, and uninhabited. Nothing remarkable during this day's march. Five miles.

Monday, June 21. This morning I mount guard. The troops march at sunrise, and soon enter the Great Swamp. Proceed seven miles, and take breakfast. Here we cross the small river called Tunkhannunk, which empties itself into the Delaware at Easton. We now proceed on our march through the swamp, which is a dark and dismal place, being covered with a growth of large pines and hemlock, and small brush so thick that a man can't be seen a rod from the road. This swamp is not level, but has some considerable hills and ledgy mountains in it; and by accounts it extends between forty and fifty miles, north and south, and from twelve to twenty in width. In about seven miles we cross another small river, called the Tobahanna, much smaller than the former. We still proceed on the march, making few halts. About two came to Locust Hill, but, there being no water, obliged us to continue the march; the travelling very bad and the troops much fatigued. At about four, P. M., we cross considerable of a river, which is the principal branch of the river Lehigh. At about six, P. M., arrive at Barren Hill, alias Burnt Plain, much fatigued with our day's march. Here we encamp for the night. Nothing remarkable happens during this day's march. Nineteen miles.

Tuesday, June 22. This day the troops lie by till twelve o'clock, at which time we move off the ground, myself in the rear guard. The troops were scarcely gone when two savages were seen by our friendly Indians, and the first that had been discovered by our party during the march. At about five we arrive at Billock House, where we encamp for the night. Nothing extraordinary this day. Five miles.

Wednesday, June 23. This morning the troops march at seven o'clock, and pass the Bear Swamp, and a place called the Shades of Death, by its being a dark, lonesome place. The sun is scarcely to be seen for the trees and bushes. Not far from this place is where Capt. Davis and Lieut. Jones, from Pennsylvania, were inhumanly murdered, April 18th, 1779, by the savages. During the whole of our march from Easton we travelled through the most barren part of the country I ever saw for so far together. Rocky mountains, sunken swamps and burning plains the whole of the way. At about two P. M., we arrive at Wyoming, which lies on the east branch of the Susquehanna river. Here is a fertile country, but the town wholly destroyed by the savages; and, if I mistake not, about this time, twelve months ago, their settlements were very extensive both up and down the river. There are two hundred and fifty widows in this place, whose husbands were slain in Col. Butler's battle, about the time the town was destroyed. The principal town was on the east side of the river. This was a County town, in the County of Westmoreland. The inhabitants are wholly from the State of Connecticut, and hold their land by its grant. The troops march about half a mile down the river and encamp. Nothing remarkable happens this day. Seven miles.

Thursday, June 24. Nothing remarkable happens this day. We lie by in our tents, having little or no duty to do. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Friday, June 25, and Saturday, 26. Nothing worthy of notice happens. All peace and quietness. So ends the forty-eight hours.

Sunday, June 27. This day two regiments of Gen. Poor's brigade, 2nd and 3rd, cross the river, and move about three miles up stream and encamp on its banks, near a large picket fort, known by the name of Forty Fort. This fort derives its name from its being built by forty persons, original proprietors of the tract of land lying on that side the Susquehanna, and containing forty rights. The land here is very fertile, and the interval or meadow extends near four miles from the banks of the river. Nothing extraordinary happens during this day. Three miles.

Monday, June 28; Tuesday, 29; Wednesday, 30; Thursday, July 1; Friday, 2, and Saturday, 3. Nothing remarkable happens. Scarcity of provisions, which makes uneasiness among the troops.

Sunday, July 4. This day, being the anniversary or the Independence of America, and being Sunday, the celebration was put off till tomorrow. This day we are joined by the other—2nd regiment—belonging to the brigade. Col. Cilley, New-Hampshire troops; Col. Courtland, New-York troops. Nothing remarkable happens during this day.

Monday, July 5. This day Gen. Poor makes an elegant entertainment for all the officers of his brigade, with a number of gentlemen from other brigades, and from the town. Gen. Hand and his retinue were present. The dining room was a large booth, about eighty feet in length, with a marquee pitched at each end. The day was spent in civil mirth and jollity. The company consisted of upwards of one hundred, who graced the feast with a number of good songs. After dinner the following toasts were drank, to wit:

- 1st. The United States.
- 2nd. The Fourth of July, '76: The memorable era of American Independence.
- 3rd. The Grand Council of America.
- 4th. Gen. Washington and the Army.
- 5th. The King and Queen of France.
- 6th. Gen. Sullivan and the Western Expedition.
- 7th. May the Counsellors of America be wise, and her Soldiers invincible.
- 8th. A successful and decisive campaign.
- 9th. Civilization, or death to all savages.
- 10th. To the immortal memory of those heroes who have fallen in defence of American Liberty.
- 11th. May the husbandman's cottage be blessed with peace, and his fields with plenty.
- 12th. Vigor and virtue to the sons and daughters of America.
- 13th. May the New World be the last asylum of freedom and the arts.

Tuesday, July 6. This day nothing worthy of notice happens.

Wednesday, July 7. This day I sat on a court martial. Nothing remarkable happens this day. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Thursday, July 8, and Friday, 9. Nothing worthy of notice happens.

Saturday, July 10. This day I ride to town for recreation. Towards evening ride down the river about four miles, to a place called Shawney. The land is exceedingly good and pleasant. I return home late. Visit the guards at twelve o'clock at night. This day Capt. Frye and Capt. Ellis set out on their command to Brinker's Mills.

Sunday, July 11, and Monday, 12. Nothing happens worthy of notice.

Tuesday, July 13. This day a number of gentlemen and ladies from town ride up to take a survey of our encampment: Col. Butler, Capt. Spalding and others, with their ladies.

Wednesday, July 14, and Thursday, 15. Nothing worthy of note happens.

Friday, July 16. This day I dine with Gen. Poor, in company with the Hon. Major General Sullivan and his suite. The day was spent very agreeably. Nothing remarkable happens during the day.

Saturday, July 17. Nothing worthy of notice happens this day.

Sunday, July 18. This day, at ten, A. M., the brigade attend divine service. This afternoon considerable of a cannonade is heard down the river, the reason of which is not yet known. Nothing extraordinary.

Monday, July 19. Nothing happens worthy of notice this day. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Tuesday, July 20. Nothing this day to be mentioned.

Wednesday, July 21. This evening, by order of Gen. Poor, I sat out from camp for Easton, in company with Lieut. Hoite. At ten, P. M., leave Col. Butler's and enter the Shady Grove. At daybreak we arrive at Locust Hill, from whence we proceed, and at eleven o'clock join Col. Read at Brinker's Mills; halt two hours, and then proceed to Easton. Nothing remarkable happens during Wednesday night and Thursday. So ends the thirty-six hours.

Friday, July 23. This morning I feel the effects of my late journey; am employed in preparing for returning to camp. Nothing material during this day.

Saturday, July 24. This day I set out for Easton. Nothing remarkable happens this day.

Sunday, July 25. This day, after sending the party on, I stop, in company with Dr. Barnet and other gentlemen, and take breakfast; from whence we proceed on the journey and make a halt at Hiller's tavern, Plainfield, twelve miles from Easton. Here we halt for the night. Nothing remarkable happens this twenty-four hours.

Monday, July 26. This morning the weather still proves rainy, but we proceed on the journey to Brinker's mill; there dine; move on to Leonard's tavern and put up for the night. A dispute arises between Capt. Peatt and myself. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Tuesday, July 27. This day we move on the march through the woods and swamp. This evening, at seven o'clock, come up with Col. Read's party at Bullock's house, and there stay during the night with Capt. Frye. No more this day.

Wednesday, July 28. This morning I march early in, and leave Col. Read on the ground. At nine I arrive at Wyoming, and find the brigade have moved on to the east side of the river.

Thursday, July 29. Nothing remarkable during this day.

Friday, July 30. This day I am busy in preparing for the march.

Saturday, July 31. This day the troops march from Wyoming. They march on the east side of the river. At about sunset arrive at Lakawaonunk, ten miles.

This was a new settlement, but destroyed by the savages. The land is very fertile, and bids fair to have made a very fine town. The river here takes a turn to about a west point. Nothing remarkable happens during this day's march. Ten miles

Sunday, August 1. This day the troops march at twelve o'clock. The road here soon leaves the upland and takes the beach; the mountains here shutting close down on the river till we come to Quilutimunk, seven miles. Here encamp for the night on the intervale, the finest I ever saw. Nothing remarkable this day. Seven miles.

Monday, August 2. This day I improve in fishing with the seine, and catch some bass and other fine fish. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Tuesday, August 3. This morning, at seven o'clock, the troops leave Quilutimunk; proceed on the march up river, which we soon leave and take the upland. The country is very mountainous for near ten miles. Here we encamp for the night at a small settlement called the Tunkhannunk. Ten miles.

Wednesday, August 4. This morning the troops march early through a barren country. March ten miles to a small river called —; make a short halt and refresh, and then proceed five miles to Vanderlap's Ford. Here encamp for the night. The finest black walnut timber grows on the intervale that I ever saw. This place is desolated and the owner gone to the enemy. Nothing remarkable this day. Fifteen miles.

Thursday, August 5. This day the troops leave Vanderlap's desolated farms. I march on the flank guard, over the most mountainous country I ever travelled. Here the mountains shut down close on the river for seven or eight miles. At 6 o'clock we arrive at Wyeluting. Nothing remarkable happens this day. Ten miles.

Friday, August 6. This day the troops lie by for washing their clothes. Nothing remarkable happens during the day. This place is remarkable for its fertility. It is a considerable spot of intervale, extending up the river about two miles, but not exceeding half a mile back from the river. This place was settled by a denomination of people called Moravian Indians, by the Moravians having missionaries among them. They are all gone back at present, and are with the enemy.

Saturday, August 7. This day the weather proves rainy. The troops lie by.

Sunday, August 8. This morning the troops proceed on their march up the river; the country not extraordinary, and the mountains shutting in on the river on both sides most of this day's march. At 1 o'clock halt at the Standing Stone, so called by there being a large rock on the side of the river standing on one end. Here we encamp for the night on the intervale, there being considerable of a tract of good land at this place. Nothing remarkable during this day. Eleven miles.

Monday, August 9. This morning the troops proceed on the march and make a short halt at four miles. Here is considerable of a body of intervale, the finest I ever saw; the wild grass and wild beans higher than a man's head. Here are the finest buttonwood trees that I have seen in my travels, growing as tall and straight as any pine trees that I ever saw, and equally as large. We now proceed on the march, leaving the river and taking the upland, and travel through a very indifferent country. At 6 o'clock arrive at Sullivan's Farms, formerly Shegekannunk Flats. Here encamp on the flats, twelve miles. Nothing remarkable during this day. Sixteen miles.

Tuesday, August 10. This day the troops lie by on the flats. Nothing remarkable happens this day.

Wednesday, August 11. This morning the troops march up the river one mile, and there ford the — branch, and march up on the south side of the river; and in marching about two miles come to where Queenchester palace was destroyed. It is a fine, open, level country. Here we cross the south branch of the river, into the old Indian town called Tiego, which lies in the arms of the two rivers. Their wigwams were all destroyed by themselves about a year ago, when they left the place.

Thursday, August 12. The troops lie by this day. At six P. M., orders come for marching to Chemung. At nine, this evening, set out on the expedition. The night is very dark and the road very indifferent; nothing more than a foot path, and in many places none at all. At daybreak we come to the town of Chemung, which consists of about seventeen Indian houses, or wigwams, deserted by the enemy. The land on the east side is but indifferent. On the west the intervals appears to be considerably extensive. At this place there are some fine fields of Indian corn, which we destroyed by fire. Gen. Hand, who marched in front, lost six men on the field, and Col. Cilley one. Major Franklin, from Wyoming, is badly wounded.

Friday, August 13. We still lie on the ground till twelve o'clock, when we begin to move for our old quarters, Tiego. Col. Shrewler's regiment, of Jersey, and Col. Dearborn's, of New-Hampshire, form the left flank on our march back. At nine o'clock in the evening we arrive at Tiego, where our tents and baggage were left, much fatigued with our march. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Saturday, August 14. This morning I feel much fatigued with my late command, but, nothing of notice turning up, we lie by and rest.

Sunday, August 15. Nothing remarkable happens during this day.

Monday, August 16. This day a detachment of 900 men is sent up the east branch to join Gen. Clinton, who is expected to be on his march from lake —, the head of this river. The country during this day's march is poor, being chiefly pine plain, with some considerable hills. At sunset we encamp on the banks of the river, on the west side. Nothing remarkable this day. Thirteen miles.

Tuesday, August 17. This day the troops march early. I march on the flank guard. The country is very mountainous, with some fertile valleys. At 4, P. M., we arrive at a considerable Indian town, called Owago, fourteen miles. Here is a very good tract of land on both sides of the river. The town consisted of about twenty houses, which we destroyed, together with considerable Indian corn, which is in the milk, just fit to roast. The town appears to have been evacuated but a little time. Fourteen miles.

Wednesday, August 18. This morning we march early. During this day's march we travel through a broken, barren country, having no path of consequence, but picking our way over mountains and through sunken swamps; the most disagreeable travelling I have seen. At 4, P. M., arrive at Churamuk, a considerable Indian town on the east side of the river, consisting of about — houses, which we destroyed. Here we found corn and cucumbers in abundance. The land here is exceeding fine; a large flat of 400 or 500 acres, clear run over to English grass, so thick and high it was with difficulty a man could travel through. Here we encamp for the night. At sunset we hear a cannon up the river, which we suppose to be at Gen. Clinton's encampment. Two men are sent off this evening as spies. Fifteen miles.

Thursday, August 19. This morning we hear another gun up the river, but, no intelligence arriving, the troops are ordered to march, and proceed about one mile, when our spies, sent off last evening, meet us with intelligence of Gen. Clinton's being near. We then return to the place of our last encampment. At 10, A. M., Gen. Clinton arrives with about — boats and 1500 men. We immediately proceed on the march for Tiego. At sunset arrive at the old encampment at Owago, and encamp. Nothing material happens this day. Fourteen miles.

Friday, August 20. This day it proves rainy. We suffer much by reason of the weather and want of tents.

Saturday, August 21. This morning the troops march early. Make but few halts during the day. At 5, P. M., encamp on the banks of the river opposite — farm, about seventeen miles from Owago. Nothing remarkable this day. Nineteen miles.

Sunday, August 22. This morning the troops march early for the old encampment at Tiego, which we make at about 11, A. M. Nothing remarkable during this day. Eight miles.

Monday, August 23. This day a very melancholy accident happened. A soldier, in snapping his gun, insensible of its being loaded, it went off and shot Capt. Benjamin Kimball through the heart. The same shot went through two more tents, where were a number of soldiers, with no further hurt than slightly wounding a man in the leg.

Tuesday, August 24. This morning the remains of Capt. Kimball were interred with the honors of war. The troops are paraded and all the baggage loaded. Everything is made ready for the excursion into the Indian country. At sunset all unloaded, and tents pitched on the old ground. The morning gun to be the signal for marching to-morrow morning.

Tiego, Wednesday, August 25. The day is very rainy, which prevents the troops marching. They lie by on the ground. Nothing remarkable this day.

Tiego, Thursday, August 26. This morning at 11, A. M., the troops march from Tiego, making our course about north-west, over a thick pine plain, clearing the road before us, and following the Allegana branch. Encamp at 3, P. M., near the river, by a large plat of intervale. Nothing remarkable this day. Four miles.

Friday, August 27. This morning at 8 o'clock the army proceed on the march in two columns, about half a mile in distance and about a west course. The artillery deters our march this day, having the road to clear before us through an uncultivated wilderness. The difficulties of this day prevent the troops from encamping till 12 o'clock at night, at which time we encamp on a large flat of intervale, called Old Chemung. Here is a vast quantity of corn and vegetables, which we destroy. There are no buildings at this place, the town being built about three miles up the river. Six miles.

Saturday, August 28. Having despatched the business here, at 11, A. M., march forward, and at sunset encamp at Chemung town, near the banks of the river. This evening several smokes and fires are discovered at some distance before us, supposed to be the enemy. Six miles.

Chemung, Sunday, August 29. At 10 o'clock this morning the troops proceed on the march in the usual order. At about 12 o'clock, our vanguard come in sight of the enemy's lines, thrown up by our left from the river, half a mile in extent, on a very advantageous piece of ground; the infantry beginning a slow attack on their flanks and advance parties, while Gen. Poor's brigade is sent round their left flank, to gain the enemy's rear, which he nearly completed, falling in with their flank, or rather their main body, lying off in the woods in order to cut off our rear. A very warm action ensued between about 600 chosen savages, commanded by Brant and Capt. Butler, of the Queen's rangers, and Poor's brigade, commanded by himself in person. The brigade marched on with coolness, with charged bayonets, not a gun being fired till within a short distance, when the enemy were obliged to give back, leaving their dead on the ground, amounting to about twenty. We took three prisoners. At sunset, after a complete victory, encamp near the field of action, carrying off our dead and wounded. Among the latter was Major Titcomb, Capt. Cloyes, and Lt. McCawley, and about thirty others. The killed amounted to but four or five. During the whole of the action Col. Reed's and Col. Dearborn's regiment fared the hardest. Six miles.

Near Newton, Monday, August 30. This day Lieut. McCawley dies of his wounds. The whole army lie by and are employed in destroying the corn and vegetables at this place, which are very plenty. The wounded are sent down the river this evening to Chemung, and the remains of the dead buried. This evening the whole of the army by their voluntary consent are reduced to half allowance: half a pound of beef and flour.

Newton, Tuesday, August 31. This day the army proceed on the march in the usual manner. At 2, P. M., arrive at the forks of the river; the Allegana branch keeping its former course, and the Tiego branch turning near a north-west course. Here are the principal improvements in Newton, and some good buildings of the English construction, some very large flats of intervale, and great quantities of corn, which were destroyed yesterday. Here the troops take dinner and burn the town. At 4, P. M., proceed on the march. At sunset encamp on a beautiful plain. We keep about a north-west course, following the Tiego branch. Twelve miles.

Pleasant Plain, Wednesday, Sept. 1. This morning at 9, A. M., the troops proceed on the march, the travelling continuing good, about four miles; then, crossing a mountain; from thence into a swamp, about eight miles through, very thick with bushes, and exceedingly bad travelling. Not finding an agreeable spot to encamp on, travelled till 12 o'clock at night, over the most disagreeable road I ever travelled. At 12 o'clock we arrived at an Indian town called French Catherine's, deriving its name from a French lady debauched by an Indian chief; afterwards marrying him, and made queen of the place. It is a small town, consisting of thirty houses and large fields of corn—the inhabitants leaving the town at our approach, in the greatest confusion. We take two squaws at this place, who inform us that the Indians are in the greatest confusion, not knowing what to do; that the old Indians and squaws are for making peace on any terms, but that Butler and Brant would not let them, telling them they would all be scalped if they attempted anything of that nature. Here is a small river that runs due north and empties itself into Seneca Lake, the head of which comes within four miles of Tiego branch, which empties itself into the Susquehanna. Fourteen miles.

French Catherine's, Thursday, Sept. 2. This morning a small scout is sent out to reconnoitre the woods. They discover Butler and his party about eight miles off, on the opposite side of the Lake of Seneca. The troops lie by on the ground, and are employed in destroying the crops. We leave the squaws taken prisoners yesterday, they being old and unable to do us any harm—leaving with them a sufficiency of food till we should return.

French Catherine's, Friday, Sept. 3. This morning the troops march early. In marching about three miles we come to the Seneca Lake, which we follow on the east side. This lake is very pleasant, being from three to five miles in width. The land ascends gradually, and appears to be of the best quality. At night the troops encamp in the woods near the lake, having travelled about twelve miles. Nothing remarkable during this day.

Saturday, Sept. 4. This day we proceed on the march down the lake, passing by a small Indian town called Appletown. During the day's march we travel over a very fine level tract of land, and at night encamp near the lake. Nothing remarkable this day, having travelled about twelve miles.

Sunday, Sept. 5. This day we continue the march as usual, the country continuing very good. At 3, P. M., come to an Indian town called Conday. Here the troops encamp for the night. This is considerable of a village, consisting of about twenty houses, which were burnt, and appears to be an ancient settlement by the number and bigness of the fruit trees. Nothing remarkable during our stay here, except taking a soldier that had left the enemy. Four miles.

Tuesday, Sept. 7. This morning the troops march early, following the lake eleven miles, where we come to the outlet, which empties itself into Cayuga Lake. We cross this outlet and march along on the beach on the lower end of the lake, which is very pleasant, having a prospect of the whole length, which is forty-two miles. Near the end of this lake is the famous town of Kanadagago, the metropolis of the Seneca Nations. It is an old settlement, consisting of about ninety houses, very irregularly built, the land being much run over to bushes. Their corn fields are planted in bye places in the woods, at considerable distance from town, and very extensive. At this place was found in one of their houses an image which I think might be worshipped without any breach of the second commandment — not having its likeness in the heavens above or in the earth beneath, &c. Here we find a young boy the savages had left, and in the evening his mother comes in, having deserted the enemy this day. She was an inhabitant of Wyoming, taken about a year ago at the capitulation of the fort at that place her husband being killed at the battle of Wyoming. Here is a large burying place, with several large monuments raised over some of their chiefs. The enemy left this place the morning of our arrival. This town lies near three miles from the lake. Fourteen miles.

Kanadagago, Wednesday, Sept. 8. This day the army lie by, and a detachment is sent up the lake seven miles on the west side, to a large town called —, where they find vast quantities of corn, beans, peas, and other vegetables, the town consisting of about twenty houses, which are destroyed together with the crops.

Kanadagago, Thursday, Sept. 9. At ten o'clock the army decamp and pursue the march for Genesee river, steering our course about south-west through an open country, hundreds of acres together with scarcely a tree on it, and the grass as high as a man's head. We march nine miles and encamp. Nothing remarkable this day.

Friday, Sept. 10. At ten o'clock the troops march. We travel over a fine tract of land, supposed to be an old Indian town, the grass being higher than our heads and but few trees to be seen. At four, P. M., come to a large pond or lake, having but one outlet, which empties into Lake Ontario. We cross the outlet, near which is a fine Indian town called Canandaigua. Their improvements are two miles from the town. The town consists of between thirty and forty buildings, some of them the best I have seen on the march, which were destroyed by fire, together with the crops. Nothing remarkable during the stay here. Eight miles.

Canandaigua, Saturday, Sept. 11. This morning the troops march early, about a south-west point, over a country as heretofore, except being badly watered. At four, P. M., encamp at an Indian town called Anagangaw. It is an old settlement, almost evacuated, having but about twenty houses left in the place, and the appearance but indifferent. Fourteen miles.

Canandaigua, Sunday, Sept. 12. The preceding night the weather proves rainy, and there is very severe thunder and lightning. At one, P. M., the troops march, leaving a small garrison of one hundred men and two pieces of small artillery, the chief of the ordnance stores, with the whole of our flour for the army, except four days' half rations, which we take on with us. We travel over a fine tract of land this afternoon. At sunset encamp near a small town called Yorkjough. Eleven miles.

Monday, Sept. 13. This morning the army march early and soon pass by Yorkjough, a small Indian town, consisting of about thirty buildings, evacuated this morning by the enemy. Considerable crops are growing at this place. The troops halt and refresh; likewise to repair a bridge the enemy had destroyed at their going off. Last evening Lt. Boyd of the Pennsylvania line was ordered forward to make discoveries. This morning, in attempting to return to the main body, he is attacked by the savages and a severe engagement ensues. The savage party being much superior, surrounded Boyd and his party. Three only of twenty-seven escaped. Boyd and the rest of the party were either killed or made prisoners—the latter of whom were afterwards barbarously murdered, two of whom I saw myself—Boyd, and one Parker, a sergeant in the rifle corps. Boyd's head was cut off, his ears cut off, his tongue plucked out, his right eye likewise put out, and himself stabbed in twenty places, and Parker used in the same manner. The next day thirteen more were found mangled in the same manner—the most horrid sight I ever saw. At twelve o'clock the troops get under way and march over a fine tract of land, and at sunset arrive at New Genesee, a small town pleasantly situated on the north branch of Genesee river. Here the enemy stay until our approach in sight gives us reason to expect a battle, but on our near approach they disperse without making any resistance. Here we encamp for the night. Eight miles.

Tuesday, Sept. 14. This morning the troops cross the east branch, coming on to the flats called Genesee Flats,—the most beautiful flats I ever saw, being not less than four miles in width, and extending from right to left as far as can be seen; supposed to be fifteen thousand acres in one clear body. On the opposite side of this flat is the main branch of the Genesee. The two make a junction about four miles down the river, near which is the old town of Genesee, which is the best town I have seen. It consists of upwards of one hundred houses. The fields of corn are beyond account, there being not less than seven hundred acres in the place. The river that runs here empties into Lake Ontario, and good bottoming almost any time of year, and does not exceed twenty-five miles to the lake. Six miles.

Genesee, Sept. 15. This day the troops are employed in destroying the crops and buildings at this place. At two, P. M., orders are issued for the march back to Tiego, and to our great joy at three get under way—returning by the same route we came—having fully accomplished the end of the expedition, and encamp at New Genesee.

New Genesee, Sept. 16. This morning the troops get under way, after destroying one hundred acres of corn, not found on the march up. March about five miles and encamp at Yorkjough.

Yorkjough, Sept. 17. This day the troops make a rapid march. At two, P. M., encamp at Annagaugaw.

Saturday, Sept. 18. This day, at eleven, A. M., the troops march, and at sunset encamp near New Canandaigua. Nothing remarkable this day.

Sunday, Sept. 19. This morning at nine the troops march. At sunset encamp on the old ground at Canandaigua.

Monday, Sept. 20. This day a detachment is sent up to Fort Stanwix, under the command of Col. Van Chort. Another detachment is sent off this day to Tiego Lake, commanded by Col. Butler, to make excursions into that part of the country. The troops march late in the day, cross the outlet of Seneca Lake, and encamp near its banks.

Tuesday, Sept. 21. This day Col. Dearborn takes the command of a detachment sent to Tiego Lake to follow the west side, while Col. Butler and his party scour the east side. The troops proceed on their march as usual, travel about twelve miles, and encamp. Nothing remarkable this day.

Wednesday, Sept. 22. This day the troops march about fourteen miles and encamp. Nothing remarkable this day.

Thursday, Sept. 23. This day the troops march early, nothing remarkable happening during the day. At twelve make a short halt at French Catherines, then move on about four miles, and encamp in the edge of the swamp.

Friday, Sept. 24. This day the troops make a rapid march through the swamp. At four, P. M., arrive at Fort Reed.

Saturday, Sept. 25. This day the troops lie on the ground, and a feu de joie is fired on the news of the declaration of war by His Catholic Majesty the King of Spain. Thirteen pieces of artillery are fired, with a running fire from right to left of the line. Each brigade has a present of a fat ox. The day is closed with civil mirth. So ends the twenty-four hours.

Sunday, Sept. 26. The troops continue on the ground this day. Nothing remarkable happens.

Monday, Sept. 27. This morning a detachment of five hundred men is sent up the Allegana branch, and thirty boats, myself commanding the latter. The difficulty of getting the boats up so rapid and shoal a river prevented the party by land proceeding more than five miles. Where the boats landed we find some large fields of corn, with a few houses—the mountains closing nearly to the river on both sides. Here the boats are loaded with corn, beans, pumpkins, and other vegetables. At sunset I set out with my whole fleet, and at nine arrive at Fort Reed, fatigued with my day's march.

Tuesday, Sept. 28. The troops continue on the ground, and at eleven o'clock the detachment under Col. Butler, sent out on the 20th inst., arrives. Orders are issued for marching to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, Sept. 29. This morning at twelve o'clock the troops march from Fort Reed, passing over the field of action, and at twelve (sic) arrive at Chemung, and make a short halt; from whence we march to Old Chemung, about three miles below, and encamp, having marched about eleven miles. Nothing remarkable happens this day.

Thursday, Sept. 30. This morning at eight o'clock the troops march. At twelve arrive at Tiego, in sight of Fort Sullivan. After making a short halt, the troops march in, displaying all the honors of war and glories of victory. The fort saluted us with thirteen pieces of cannon, and the compliment was returned by our corps of artillery. An elegant dinner is cooked by those left in the fort for our reception. All marks of joy appeared in the face of every soldier, having his brother messmate by the hand, appearing as happy as a prince. The day closed with civil mirth.

Tiego, Friday, Oct. 1, and Saturday, Oct. 2. The troops lie by and nothing remarkable happens.

Sunday, Oct. 3. This day a fatigue party is employed in destroying Fort Sullivan and other fortifications at this place, and preparing the boats. A sermon is preached this day by the Rev. Dr. Evans, chaplain to the brigade, and suitable to the time.

Monday, Oct. 4. This day at nine the troops leave Tiego, having demolished all the fortifications at that place, and cross the river, marching about fifteen miles, and encamp. Nothing remarkable happens this day.

Tuesday, Oct. 5. This morning the troops chiefly go on board the boats, myself going by land. I keep in front of the boats the whole of the day. At night encamp near Vandalap's desolated farms in front of the boats.

Wednesday, Oct. 6. This morning at daybreak I move on my journey, keeping in sight of the boats the chief of the day. I travel about thirty miles and encamp near Lackawannuk.

Thursday, Oct. 7. This day I pursue my journey. At eight, A. M., I arrive at Lackawannuk, where the boats lie by for the rear to come up. Myself and company go on to Wyoming, where we arrive at twelve o'clock. The boats soon heave in sight and are saluted from the fort with thirteen pieces of cannon, and the compliment returned by our fleet.

Friday, Oct. 8, and Saturday, Oct. 9. The troops lie by at this place, cleaning their arms, washing their clothes, and preparing for marching to-morrow.

Sunday, Oct. 10. This day at twelve o'clock the troops get under way for Easton. Late in the evening we arrive at Bullock's desolated farm, where we encamp for the night.

Monday, Oct. 11. This day the troops march early, and move but slow, by reason of the bad roads. At four, P. M., encamp near Locust Hill, having marched about eleven miles.

Tuesday, Oct. 12. This morning the troops proceed on the march through the Swamp. The latter part of the day proves rainy, and makes the travelling exceedingly bad. At night encamp at Chowder Camp.

Wednesday, Oct. 13. This morning the troops pursue their march. At four, P. M., encamp at Brincoup's Mills.

Thursday, Oct. 14. This morning the troops march at about eleven, A. M., and encamp at 3, P. M. at Hiller's Tavern.

Friday, Oct. 15. This morning the troops march early from Hiller's Tavern. At one, P. M., arrive at Easton. From this day to the 23d the troops lie at this place, where nothing remarkable happens.

Saturday, Oct. 23. This day the troops cross the ferry in Jersey, march about four miles, and encamp near Col. Bond's.

Sunday, Oct. 24. The troops lie by on the ground. Nothing remarkable.

Monday, Oct. 25. This day the troops lie by.

Tuesday, Oct. 26. This day the troops lie by, and a brigade court martial is called, of which Major Titcomb is President, for the trial of Capt. Isaac Frye, of the third battalion of New-Hampshire forces, of which I was a member. The charge brought against Capt. Frye was ungentlemanlike behavior, and defrauding the officers of the regiment of public stores. The charge was not supported, and Capt. Frye is acquitted.

Wednesday, Oct. 27. This day the troops march towards Sussex. We proceed about eight miles and encamp. Nothing remarkable happens during this day.

Thursday, Oct. 28. This day the troops pursue the march, mostly through Moraviantown, where we make a short halt and refresh; from whence we proceed to a place called Log Goal, and here encamp for the night.

Friday, Oct. 29. This day the troops pursue the march for Sussex, where we arrive at two, P. M., and encamp for the night.

Saturday, Oct. 30. This morning the troops leave Sussex about nine o'clock, and march on towards Warwick, about fourteen miles, and encamp at Flaggborough. Nothing remarkable this day.

Sunday, Oct. 31. This day the troops proceed on the march, and at night encamp near Warwick church. Nothing remarkable this day.

Monday, Nov. 1. This day for want of wagons the march is deferred till twelve o'clock, when we proceed on the march. Being ordered to alter the route for Pumpton, we proceed over the mountains towards that place—the travelling very bad. At night encamp at Stirling, a place noted for making the best pig iron on the continent. Here is a fine furnace for casting cannon balls, &c.

Tuesday, Nov. 2. This day we get through the mountains, and at three, P. M., arrive at —, where we encamp for the night. Nothing remarkable happens this day.

Wednesday, Nov. 3. This day the troops lie by on the ground. Nothing remarkable this day.

Thursday, Nov. 4. This day the troops lie by. Myself, in company with Maj. Whiting, Capts. Reed, Ellis and Dennet, ride out to Smith's tavern, and stay over night. Nothing remarkable during the twenty-four hours.

Friday, Nov. 5. This day in the afternoon we return to camp. Receive orders for marching to-morrow morning at nine o'clock. Nothing remarkable this day.

Saturday, Nov. 6. This day Gen. Hand's brigade and the artillery march off the ground. The other two—Poor's and Clinton's—stay for want of wagons. Gen. Sullivan likewise sets out for Pumpton this afternoon.

Sunday, Nov. 7. This day Gen. Clinton's brigade march for Pumpton. Gen. Poor's lie by for want of wagons.

Monday, Nov. 8. This day Gen. Poor's brigade march for Pumpton, where we arrive at four, P. M., and encamp near the fort.

Tuesday, Nov. 9. This day the troops lie by. His Excellency pays us a visit from head quarters—this being the first since our arrival from the Indian country. The weather is exceedingly uncomfortable and cold about this time.

Wednesday, Nov. 10, and Thursday, Nov. 11. The troops lie by. Nothing worthy of notice.

Friday, Nov. 12. This day the troops shift their quarters. March about two miles south-east in a thick wood, on the east side of the river.

Saturday, Nov. 13. This day we lie by. Nothing remarkable.

Sunday, Nov. 14. This day the officers of Gen's Clinton's and Poor's brigades meet at Gen. Poor's quarters on business of a public nature.

Monday, Nov. 15. From this time to the 24th, the troops lie by, and nothing remarkable happens.

Wednesday, Nov. 24. This morning the troops march from Pumpton on the way to King's ferry. At night encamp at —, near Smith's tavern, travelling about sixteen miles.

Thursday, Nov. 25. This morning the troops march early. At two, P. M., arrive at King's ferry, and immediately proceed to conveying the men and baggage of the regiment over the ferry, which is accomplished about sunset. The troops march about two miles, and encamp in the woods.

Friday, Nov. 26. The preceding night proves stormy, and the first snow that has fallen this winter prevents the troops from marching this day.

Saturday, Nov. 27. This day at four, P. M., the troops get under way, and march about six miles towards Danbury, and encamp in the woods. The snow here is about eight inches in depth.

Sunday, Nov. 28. This day we proceed on the march, the travelling being very bad. At night encamp near Salem, travelling about twelve miles.

Monday, Nov. 29. This morning we proceed on the march. At four, P. M., take quarters in houses three miles from Danbury, by reason of Gen. Stark's brigade lying in the town of Danbury.

Tuesday, Nov. 30. The troops lie by at Muddy Brook, by reason of the weather.

Wednesday, Dec. 1. This day the troops lie by and nothing remarkable happens.

Thursday, Dec. 2. This day the troops proceed on the march, and go on to the ground laid out for hutting, which is in the vicinity of Danbury, towards Newton.

Friday, Dec. 3, Saturday, 4, and Sunday, 5. These three days the troops are busy in clearing and fixing for laying the foundations of the huts.

Monday, Dec. 6. This day the huts go on rapidly, and in the evening the officers of the brigade attend at the Hon. Gen. Poor's quarters, to wait on the committee from New-Hampshire and choose a committee to send to New-Hampshire, to settle the depreciation of the continental currency.

Tuesday, Dec. 7. This day I lay the foundation of my hut, twenty-two feet in length and twelve in width.

(No further entries were made by Capt. Livermore in his Journal until April 6, 1780, when he commences anew, with the following entry):

April 6, 1780. After spending a very disagreeable winter in the outskirts of Danbury, bordering on Newton, at a place called Wild-Cat, and going through many disagreeable scenes, which circumstances have prevented my keeping a minute of, this day Gen. Poor's Brigade leave their winter quarters, and march for West Point, on the North River.

On Oct. 10, 1783, he was promoted by Congress to the rank of major by brevet in the army of the United States. On Dec. 19, 1783, he was at his own request dismissed from the service, and returned to Concord, N. H., where he continued to live until his death, engaged principally in agricultural pursuits. He built in 1785, the house (cut of it on page 517 of History of Concord, N. H.), formerly owned by Rev. Nathaniel Bouton. He was chosen representative, March 3, 1795, and surveyor of highways, March 1, 1796. He was tall and slender in person, and highly respected by the people of Concord. No children.

ELIJAH<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born March 4, 1731, in Waltham; died Aug. 5, 1808, in Livermore, Me.; married (1), published Jan. 2, 1756, in Boston, Dinah, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Barrett) Whitney, born July 12, 1727, in Marlboro; died Sept. 30, 1759, in Waltham; married (2) April 6, 1762, in Waltham, Hannah, daughter of John and Hannah (Cutting) Clarke, born Jan. 15, 1740, in Newton; died March 17, 1827, in Livermore. He inherited his father's homestead and was a lieutenant in the Massachusetts militia. He was chosen a deacon of the Congregational Church in Waltham upon the death of his father.

In 1779 he moved to Maine and was the founder, first settler and principal proprietor of the town of Livermore, Me., which was at first settled chiefly by emigrants from Watertown, Waltham and the adjoining towns. He erected as early as 1783, the first mills in Livermore, which were a saw-mill and grist-mill, near the outlet of Long Pond; also mills at the Falls on the east side of the river, two years after, and built mills at the outlet of Brettun's Pond. Shortly after first moving there he was obliged to withdraw from the settlement for some time, on account of danger from the Indians. He was one of the principal assessors in Pennacook, now Rumford, Me., in 1798. About 1795, Deacon Livermore and his wife joined the Methodist Church and remained members of it until their deaths. He was elected to the Great and General Court in 1799 as a representative from Livermore.

SAMUEL<sup>5</sup> LIVERMORE (Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born May 15, 1732, in Waltham; died May 18, 1803, in New Holderness, N. H.; married Sept. 22, 1759, in Portsmouth, N. H., Jane, daughter of Rev. Arthur and Mary (Cox) Browne, born in 1734, in Providence, R. I.; died Feb. 2, 1802, in New Holderness, aged 67 years. He began his education in Waltham, and in March, 1748, was appointed to keep the school in the westerly, centre and northerly parts of the town, an agreement being entered into between his father and the selectmen to that effect. In 1750-1 he taught school in Chelsea. He sailed from Boston Sept. 10, 1751, in the sloop "Lydia," Capt. J. Van Wagener, master, bound to New York, on his way to college in Princeton, N. J. There is an extract from his diary, written on the eve of his journey to college, published in Putnam's Magazine for June, 1857. For this voyage he laid in, according to this diary, "5 quarts of West Ind. rum £1. 17. 6; ¼ lb. of tea at 48s, 12s; canister 6s; 1 dozen fowls £2. 10; 2 pounds loaf sugar at 8s, 16s; 1 doz. and 8 lemons £1. 9; 3 pounds butter 12s; box 5s." His stock of clothes might well suit a collegian of the present day; it consisted of two close coats, one great-coat, two jackets, thirteen shirts, seven pairs of stockings, six caps, four cravats, three handkerchiefs, one pair of breeches.

His library was not as complete as his wardrobe; his books were: Bible, Latin and Greek Testaments and Grammar, Latin Dictionary and Lexicon, Ward's Introduction to Mathematics, Gordon's Geography, Virgil and Tully. The vessel stopped at Newport, R. I., where he bought a penknife, a corkscrew, and a buckle-brush. He carried letters of introduction to Governor Belcher and President Burr, which gave him the highest character for sobriety and studiousness. He arrived in New York Sept. 24, 1751, and paid the captain £1. 8s. in full for his passage. All such facts are valuable, when we consider the eminence to which he afterwards attained. He was graduated from Nassau Hall, Princeton, N. J., in Sept., 1752, and returned home on horseback through Connecticut and Rhode Island to Waltham.

In Dec., 1752, the selectmen of Waltham engaged him to teach the school for three months, at a salary of £45, old tenor. In Feb., 1753, and again in 1754, he was re-engaged as teacher. He was a witness to the signatures appended to a treaty with the Penobscot Indians, which was "done and concluded" at Falmouth (now Portland), Me., July 6, 1754.

He began the study of the law with Hon. Edward Trowbridge, and was admitted to practice at the Supreme Judicial Court of Middlesex County, Mass., (Court of Common Pleas, according to "The Bench and Bar of New Hampshire," by Charles H. Bell) in June, 1756. Beginning practice in Waltham, he removed to Portsmouth, N. H., in 1757, and soon became a distinguished member of the bar. He removed to Londonderry, N. H., in 1764, which town he represented in the Legislature in 1768. He was for several years Judge Advocate of the Admiralty Court, one of the most honorable and lucrative offices in the Province, and in 1769 was commissioned as King's Attorney General for New Hampshire by Governor Wentworth, then recorded as a taxpayer residing north of Market Square, Portsmouth.

It was in 1765 that he began the settlement of the town of New Holderness (Holderness since 1816) in Grafton County, N. H. Of this place (granted in 1761), he was one of the original grantees, and eventually became, by purchase, the actual proprietor of about one-half of the township, owning some ten or twelve thousand acres in Holderness, Campton and Plymouth. His farm was upon the bank of the Pemigewasset river, opposite Plymouth village. Here he fixed his permanent residence, about the beginning of the Revolution, and, it is said, possessed little less than absolute power over the inhabitants, his superiority of character adding to the influence he could naturally command from the extent of his possessions. He erected a flouring mill, and for two years or more (about 1775-6) he tended the mill with his own hands.

High in favor as he was with the royal government, he, nevertheless, at the beginning of the troubles with Great Britain, threw the whole weight of his power and influence into the popular scale. He was several years a representative in the State Legislature from the town of New Holderness, after the assumption of government by the people. Before the Revolution he had been appointed Attorney-General, as successor to Hon. Wyseman Clagett, and on Feb. 19, 1776, he was again chosen by the Legislature to the same office as successor to the same gentleman. Dec. 23, 1776, his appointment was renewed, as the vote expresses it, "for the year ensuing." It was at this period that a dispute arose in relation to the jurisdiction of the (so called) New Hampshire Grants, the territory which now constitutes the State of Vermont. This territory, either in whole or in part, was, like another Poland, claimed by three States, — New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts; while the inhabitants, acknowledging no authority but their own will, declared it a free and independent State, and exercised all the prerogatives of government.

It was then proposed by Congress, and assented to by the parties, that the whole affair should be heard and decided by Congress. Accordingly the Legislature of New Hampshire, thinking it necessary to have some gentleman of known legal abilities to act in their behalf, appointed Samuel Livermore, on Nov. 4, 1779, commissioner to support, in conjunction with the delegates in Congress, the claim of New Hampshire to the territory in dispute. But to place him more fully on an equality with the agents of the other States, it was voted, on Dec. 31, "that he be authorized and fully empowered to appear in Congress, as a delegate of this State, and there act in all and every matter relative to the boundary line between the States of Massachusetts Bay, New York and this State, and the claims of the inhabitants settled on the Grants, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as any or either of the delegates of the States of New York or Massachusetts Bay, being agents in said affair, are authorized to do."

By a subsequent vote, his term of office was limited to April 1, 1780. He was, however, again appointed June 1. He took his seat in the Continental Congress Feb. 7, 1780, and remained in that body about two years in succession, being re-elected in 1781, on Jan. 19, Sept. 1 and Dec. 29, the last time to remain till the November following.

In 1782, on June 21, before the expiration of his last term as a member of Congress, he was appointed to the high and responsible office of Chief Justice of the State of New Hampshire. The Chief Justice at that period was expected to attend every session of the court, and being usually the only lawyer upon the bench, was, of course, called upon to decide all questions of law. On March 1, 1783, he was paid £45 for services as Chief Justice. In June, 1784, Chief Justice Livermore was appointed, with Messrs. Josiah Bartlett and John Sullivan, a committee to revise the statutes then in force, and report bills necessary to be enacted at that session of the General Court. Nov. 3 of the same year he was once more chosen a delegate to the Continental Congress, and attended the session of that body in 1785. He did not, however, resign his seat upon the bench.

In 1788 a Convention was called in New Hampshire to consider the proposed Constitution, submitted to the people by the great and memorable Convention at Philadelphia. It was composed almost entirely of men of age, experience and trust; its deliberations were watched with the greatest anxiety, and their final result was considered of the highest importance to the safety of the country. The proposed form of government had already been assented to by eight States, and one more was sufficient to ensure its adoption. Of this body Chief Justice Livermore was a prominent member, and strenuous in favor of the proposed Constitution; and he was appointed on a committee, at the commencement of business, to draft rules for the government of the Convention.

It was thought necessary by nearly all the members that certain amendments, providing for a Bill of Rights, and for the greater security of individual States against the encroachments of the general government, should be incorporated as a part of the instrument. Chief Justice Livermore was one of a large committee to prepare these amendments and submit them to the Convention. Mr. Atherton of Amherst, the principal leader of those opposed to the Constitution, moved that New Hampshire should not be bound by the compact, unless the proposed amendments were adopted. But after a motion and speech from Chief Justice Livermore, it was resolved, "that the amendments should be merely submitted to Congress for its consideration." Chief Justice Livermore then moved the main question, which was decided in the affirmative, a decision which settled the fate of the proposed measure, and which gave us that well balanced system of government under which we live.

Under this Constitution, which he had taken so prominent a part in establishing, Chief Justice Livermore was chosen a member of the first Congress, taking his seat in the House of Representatives, Friday, May 1, 1789, in New York, and accordingly resigned (in 1790) his office of Chief Justice of the State of New Hampshire, in which he was succeeded by his compatriot, Josiah Bartlett. He also took his seat at the sessions of the House, Jan. 4, 1790, in New York, and Dec. 6, 1790, Oct. 24, 1791, and Nov. 5, 1792, in Philadelphia.

During the time that Congress assembled in New York, he resided at 37 Broad Street. He made his journeys to and from Congress with his own horse and carriage, Major Wm. Shepard of Holderness, his servant, driving him and his family on such occasions.

In 1791 he was returned a member of the Convention to revise the State Constitution of New Hampshire, and was chosen its President. In that capacity he presided over the deliberations of that body which formed the present State Constitution. He received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Dartmouth College in 1792.

In 1793 he was elected as successor to Paine Wingate, to the Senate of the United States, and took his seat on Monday, Dec. 2, 1793, in Philadelphia. Of the manner in which he performed the duties of this exalted station, it is only necessary to say that so well satisfied were those most immediately interested, his constituents, with his conduct, that at the expiration of a full term of six years, in 1799, he was re-elected to the same important office.

On Dec. 19, 1799, President Adams submitted to the Senate and House a letter dated Mount Vernon, Dec. 15, signed by Tobias Lear, announcing the death of General Washington. The Senate having resolved to wait on the President to condole with him on the distressing event, went to his house (in Philadelphia) and presented the address which had been previously agreed upon. The address is signed by Samuel Livermore, President pro tempore of the Senate, and is as follows :

The President of the United States :

The Senate of the United States respectfully take leave, Sir, to express to you their deep regret for the loss their Country sustains in the death of General George Washington. This event, so distressing to all our fellow citizens, must be peculiarly heavy to you, who have long been associated with him in deeds of patriotism. Permit us, sir, to mingle our tears with yours ; on this occasion it is manly to weep. To lose such a man at such a crisis, is no common calamity to the world. Our country mourns her Father. The Almighty Disposer of human events has taken from us our greatest benefactor and ornament. It becomes us to submit with reverence to him who "maketh darkness His pavilion."

With patriotic pride, we review the life of our WASHINGTON, and compare him with those of other countries, who have been pre-eminent in fame. Ancient and modern names are diminished before him. Greatness and guilt have too often been allied; but his fame is whiter than it is brilliant. The destroyers of nations stood abashed at the majesty of his virtue. It reprov'd the intemperance of their ambition, and darkened the splendor of victory. The scene is closed, and we are no longer anxious lest misfortune should sully his glory: he has travelled on to the end of his journey and carried with him an increasing weight of honor: he has deposited it safely, where misfortune cannot tarnish it, where malice cannot blast it. Favored of Heaven, he departed without exhibiting the weakness of humanity. Magnanimous in death, the darkness of the grave could not obscure his brightness. Such was the man whom we deplore. Thanks to God! his glory is consummated; WASHINGTON yet lives—on earth in his spotless example—his spirit is in heaven. Let his countrymen consecrate the memory of the heroic General, the patriotic Statesman, and the virtuous Sage; let them teach their children never to forget that the fruit of his labors and his example are their inheritance.

Dec. 23, 1799.

He resigned his seat in the Senate, June 12, 1801, owing to the impaired condition of his health, after having been President pro tempore of that body during two sessions in 1797 and 1799.

JASON<sup>6</sup> LIVERMORE (Jason,<sup>5</sup> Josiah,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 17, 1750, in Leicester; died April 1, 1816, in Cumberland, R. I.; married Mary, daughter of Daniel and Mary Jackson of Rutland, born in 1755; died March 7, 1815, in Tiverton, R. I. She was a sister of Matthew Jackson, a soldier of the Revolution from Leicester. He was a member of Capt. Willard Moore's company of minute men of Paxton, and marched on the alarm of April 19, 1775, together with his father and two brothers, who were members of the same company. He left this company shortly after their arrival in Cambridge, and joined that of Capt. Seth Washburn, in Col. Ward's regiment. He left that company and enlisted in Capt. Samuel Gridley's company, June 12, 1775, as bombardier. He was a private in Capt. John Howard's company, Col. Samuel Bullard's regiment, in Saratoga in 1777; he was a private in Capt. Loring Lincoln's company, Lt. Col. Flagg's regiment, in service five days on the Bennington alarm in 1777; he afterwards went out as a privateersman, and while in that service was taken prisoner, carried into Charleston, S. C., where he was detained some time, but finally made his escape, and on one of His Britannic Majesty's cavalry horses, borrowed for the purpose, rode back to Massachusetts. After the close of the Revolution (about 1787), he removed with his family to Maine, and settled on the Kennebec River. There he lived several years, employed as a builder. He was a member of the Ecclesiastical Council convened at Belfast, Dec. 28, 1796. In July, 1810, he moved to Frankfort, on the Penobscot. Afterwards, being a zealous Christian, and endowed with fluency of speech, he became a Baptist clergyman, preached some years in Maine, then in Tiverton, R. I., and Malden, where he was moderator in 1811. He was in Tiverton in 1814.

BRADDYL<sup>6</sup> LIVERMORE (Jason,<sup>5</sup> Josiah,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Oct. 4, 1763, in Leicester (now Paxton) ; died there Sept. 24, 1845 ; married May 5, 1785, in Concord, Mary, daughter of John and Mary Flint, born Oct. 16, 1766 ; died July 5, 1840, in Paxton. She was educated in that part of Concord then called "the North Quarter," and witnessed, April 19, 1775, the conflict at the North Bridge, which was but a short distance from her mother's house. Braddyl was a man of medium size, but possessed unusual physical and mental powers ; his muscular strength was immense. On one occasion he is said to have lifted from the ground a church bell which weighed over 700 pounds, with a man standing on the bell ; and one of his sons has seen him toss with one hand and one foot, a barrel of cider from the ground into a common ox-cart, with apparent ease. In his twelfth year he was his mother's principal assistant in carrying on the farm, during his father's and elder brothers' absence in the struggle for national existence. This he continued to do successfully during the Revolutionary war, with the exception of about three months. After the surrender of Burgoyne in Oct., 1777, a part of the captured army was cantoned in barracks erected in the town of Rutland, Mass., for that purpose. These prisoners of war were guarded mostly by elderly men and youths, whose ages prevented them from taking part in the more fatiguing service in the field. He volunteered and performed garrison duty at those barracks for three months. The musket which he carried in that service is now in the possession of his grandson, Hon. E. O. Grosvenor of Jonesville, Mich. After the close of the war he continued to live and work on the farm with his parents, and a portion of the time was employed as a mason, laboring at his trade in different parts of Massachusetts and in some of the adjoining States. He built an addition of two rooms and a back kitchen to the old homestead, and made an arrangement with his parents for a permanent residence with them, for the farm and for their future maintenance. He filled many municipal offices in his native town; represented it in the State Legislature; was for many years justice of the peace for his county, and well known outside the town.

ABEL<sup>6</sup> LIVERMORE (Abraham,<sup>5</sup> Daniel,<sup>4</sup> Daniel,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Aug. 10, 1784, in Pelham; died Sept. 5, 1849, in German, N. Y.; married May 11, 1806, in Cincinnatus, N. Y., Deborah Salisbury, born July 4, 1790, in Saratoga, N. Y.; died March 24, 1858, in Earlville, N. Y. He was a man of extraordinary good looks, of great strength and energy; his brow was high; his eye was blue, bright and piercing; his nose aquiline and prominent, cheeks broad, mouth determined but pleasant, chin short and dimpled, skin very light and clear, hair nearly black, neck short, shoulders broad, figure straight, his muscular system extraordinarily developed; his weight was 196 to 200 pounds. His chief amusement was in foot racing and in leaping over a string stretched in the air; the greatest height to which he could leap was the width of two fingers higher than his own head (six feet). In July, 1806, he bought a lot of land on the west side of his father's, in German, N. Y., being part of Lot No. 91, containing 23 acres, 1 rod, 36 perches, and gave $4.00 per acre. His house was small, made of logs, and closely surrounded with forest trees. The furniture was almost nothing; blocks for chairs, an old chest for a table, and cooking utensils accordingly. The door was a bed-quilt. The rest of his capital consisted of one cow, a yoke of two-year-old steers, one axe and a pig. Not many years elapsed before the land was cleared, the wolves that were wont to howl at the door exterminated, and competence secured. He was a noted hunter as well as a farmer. Bears, deer and wolves were abundant. He captured or killed many of these with the trap and rifle. He was one of the many backwoodsmen who sought their fortune on the western frontier of the colonies, and became the pioneers of western civilization. A large white house now stands on the site of his home.

He attended the common schools in Waltham and in Cambridge (whence his father removed in 1804). At the age of fourteen he left school to go into a store in Cambridge, where he began his training for his business life, and while still young began the dry-goods business on his own account, being engaged in it from 1816 to 1826. He was a wool merchant from 1826 to 1846; treasurer of Manchester Print Works from 1846 to 1852, and treasurer of the Michigan Central Railroad Company over twenty-one years. He was for many years a partner with the late city treasurer of Boston, Mr. James C. Dunn; subsequently with Mr. Hugh R. Kendall in the purchase and sale of wool. On the dissolution of the firm of Livermore & Kendall he associated with him his brother George.

He was prominent in public life; he was a representative to the General Court of Massachusetts from the town and city of Cambridge in 1836, '38, '41, '42 and '49; senator from the County of Middlesex in 1844 and '45; he was president of the first Common Council of the city of Cambridge, 1846; presidential elector in 1848, on the Whig ticket; a member of the Convention to revise the Constitution of Massachusetts, from Cambridge in 1853, and a justice of the peace since 1846. For over thirty years he was a director of the Bunker Hill Monument Association; a director of the City Bank, Boston, nearly eighteen years; of the National Insurance Company, Boston, over twenty years; a trustee of Mount Auburn Cemetery for eight years; president of the Hancock Free Bridge Corporation, and under his administration the funds were accumulated to purchase both the Cambridge bridges. He was also an active member of the Masonic fraternity; on Sept. 18, 1820, he was admitted to Amicable Lodge, and several times filled the highest position in Cambridge Royal Arch Chapter, Cambridgeport. He was a prominent member of the Austin Street Unitarian Church since 1854. He became a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Feb. 12, 1872, and was a life member at the time of his death.

He was educated in public and private schools in Cambridge and at Deerfield Academy. His health being poor he was obliged to give up the idea of a college education and follow some active occupation. For several years he was employed by his brothers, Isaac and Marshall, who were merchants in Cambridge. From an early age his leisure hours were spent in reading and study, and all the money he could earn was saved for the purchase of books. When quite a young man, he became much interested in the character and history of the merchant scholar, William Roscoe, the first account of whom he read in Irving's Sketch Book. In 1834 he established himself in Boston, in the shoe and leather business. His love for books increased with the increase of his means. His poetic faculty was large, and showed itself not only in a love for the best poets, but in the composition of some exquisite verses. Within a few years of the period of which we are now speaking, he wrote two dedication hymns, and a number of hymns for the use of Sunday school children. In the year 1838, he and his older brother Isaac formed a co-partnership in business as wool merchants. His interest in the parish, in the Sunday school, in the lyceum, in the political meetings of his ward, etc., never flagged. He was a constant attendant at church. He was always interested in the study of the Scriptures, and in the great themes which they suggest, and his duties as a Sunday school teacher naturally offered a constant inducement to the pursuit of these studies. We find him (Nov. 21, 1838) buying a copy of Coverdale's Bible, probably a reprint by B. Bagster, issued that year. From 1851 to 1859 he was one of the trustees of the Boston Athenaeum, chairman of its library committee and later its vice-president, and regarded as one of its most efficient and influential managers.

In November, 1843, the Biblical library of the Rev. Dr. Homer of Newton was placed on sale at Messrs. Little & Brown's, and he bought from it a number of copies of rare editions of the Bible. Among them was one of the Genevan version, presented by Admiral Sir Isaac Coffin to Dr. Homer, and supposed by its former owners to have been the identical volume presented by the printer to Queen Elizabeth; also the Bible which formerly belonged to Adam Winthrop, the father of the first Governor Winthrop. The next year the library of the Duke of Sussex was sold; this was also rich in rare editions of the Bible, some of which were purchased by him. Further rarities were subsequently added to his collection from the library of the late Dr. Hawtrey, Provost of Eton, among which may be noticed an Evangelistarium, for the use of the Church, written on parchment, and supposed to be of a date as early as the eighth century. From these sources he laid the foundation of that large collection of Biblical works which his library contained; but his time was not wholly spent, as it often is with book collectors, in amassing books; he was a careful student of them.

In 1845 he visited Europe with his friend Mr. James Brown, sailing on the first of April, but did not follow the beaten track of the tourist. He made the acquaintance of many eminent men, and visited many famous libraries, inspecting, as time permitted, the curious books and manuscripts which they contained. He was absent from home about three months.

He was deeply interested in the cause of learning; and the college in his neighborhood was as dear to him as though he had passed the four years as an undergraduate within her walls, and could call her Alma Mater. He was chosen in 1845 by the Board of Overseers a member of the library committee, and continued to hold that position by annual election until his death; being most of the time the secretary of the committee. While a member of the school committee he contributed to the "Cambridge Chronicle" an interesting article on the "Public Schools in Cambridge," going back to "Master Eaton's Flogging School," and citing the early colonial laws on the subject of schools in Massachusetts. In November, 1849, he was elected a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society; and a most valuable member did he prove, laboring for its welfare, in season and out of season to the last. The "Christian Examiner" for November, 1849, contained an article by him, written at the request of Dr. Ellis, one of the editors of that journal, on the "Publication and Circulation of the Scriptures," being a review of the Rev. W. P. Strickland's "History of the American Bible Society." This paper gave abundant evidence of his large information on the subject of the translation and circulation of the Bible.

The American Antiquarian Society enrolled him among its members in October, 1849. Harvard College conferred upon him the honorary degree of Master of Arts in 1850, and the same year he was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa society and a trustee of the State library.

His library at this time had become a most valuable one, and his thorough habits of investigation had made him an authority on those subjects which especially engaged his thoughts. A paper on "Libraries in Boston and its vicinity" in the "Bibliotheca Sacra" for January, 1850, contains a notice of his collection, and mentions many of its rare works. In the "North American Review" for July, 1850, he contributed an article on "Public Libraries," containing a large amount of curious and valuable information on the subject both as regards this country and Europe. In an article in the "Cambridge Chronicle" of June 20, 1854, relating to Cromwell's "Soldier's Pocket Bible," he showed that if Cromwell's soldiers carried the Bible in their knapsacks, it was not the whole Bible; that the "Pocket Bible" consisted of appropriate selections from the Scriptures, printed in pamphlet form, and was generally buttoned between the coat and waistcoat, next to the heart, proving sometimes, perhaps, a defence from the weapons of the enemies of their bodies as well as from the Wicked One who sought to subdue their souls. He remarked that but few copies of this little book had been preserved, and that probably the copy he possessed was the only one in the country. He then gives a brief description of it. He had had it for some years, having received it from his friend Mr. Crowninshield. The book was afterwards reprinted by Mr. Livermore.

A short description of a portion of his library will be of interest to those engaged in historical pursuits. Nearly a quarter part of the entire collection consisted of Bibles and Biblical works, in various languages, versions and forms, from the ancient Hebrew manuscript roll to the most modern translation. Among the manuscripts of interest was the Pentateuch, carefully written on thirty-six skins of parchment, measuring fifty-eight feet in length and one in breadth. This fine apograph was rolled upon a pair of handles and enclosed in an embroidered silk cover. Two copies of the Bible entire, in the Latin Vulgate version, written by monks upon the most delicate vellum, were elaborately illuminated with beautiful initials, letters, figures and miniatures; they were of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. An Evangelistarium, or selections from the Gospels, written on parchment in the eighth century, seven hundred years before the invention of printing, one of the oldest books, if not the oldest in this country. The Book of Job, a metrical version by George Sandys, is supposed to be the original autograph copy of the author. Of early printed editions he owned Biblia Pauperum, a block-book or series of wood-cuts, representing Scripture subjects, with a few lines of text coarsely engraved upon the same page; the precise date is not known, but it probably was printed as early as 1440: a fragment of the celebrated Mazarin Bible, the first book ever printed: New Testament printed by Faust in 1462, being the first in which the date is given: Servetus's Bible published in Lyons, 1542: examples of both editions of Eliot's Indian Bible, the first containing the rare dedication to King Charles II, of which only twenty were printed: a perfect copy of the Commentary of Nicholas de Lyra, beautifully printed in black-letter in 1483, being the first work of the kind ever published: the Venice edition of the Latin Vulgate, 1478, once the property of the unfortunate Pope Pius VI, having his arms stamped upon the covers: Melancthon's own copy of the Bible with numerous notes on the margins in the handwriting of the reformer.

There were besides a manuscript Koran, brought many years ago from Turkey by Edward Wortley Montagu, and the Book of Mormon with the autograph of Joseph Smith; in a large portfolio the Lord's Prayer in more than eight hundred languages and dialects. The greater part of his library was sold at auction shortly after his death.

His brother Isaac retired from the business and for the five following years George continued it in company with a nephew. After remaining alone about a year he was, in 1852, invited to a partnership in the Boston branch of the extensive wool business of Aaron Erickson of Rochester, N. Y., which subsisted until 1857, when the firm of Livermore & Morse was formed, which was dissolved only by his death. He took pride in his calling as a merchant, and for many years devoted his best energies during the hours of business to its demands.

In 1855 he was elected a member of the "American Academy of Arts and Sciences" and was treasurer of that institution at the time of his death. In 1859 he was elected a member of the executive committee of the "American Unitarian Association" and almost invariably attended its monthly meetings. In 1864 he was elected vice-president of the Association, a position which he held at his death.

On the breaking out of the Civil War in 1861, he threw himself into the cause of the Union with all his characteristic energy and zeal. As his means enabled him he gave freely, and throughout the war he poured out his money like water for the cause. When the discussion arose whether the government should accept colored troops, and there were strong doubts, even among the most loyal, as to its expediency, he prepared with great labor, and published at great expense, a work of over two hundred pages, which he entitled "An Historical Research" respecting the opinions of the founders of the Republic on negroes as slaves, as citizens and as soldiers. His purpose was to show that the patriots of the Revolution regarded the negro as a man, capable of bearing arms and of being a citizen, and he saw no reason why he should not be allowed to do his part, side by side with his white brother, in upholding the flag of his country. While declining all official positions he was in frequent correspondence with leading politicians and statesmen, and with some of them maintained the most intimate confidential relations.

JOHN<sup>6</sup> LIVERMORE (Nathaniel,<sup>5</sup> Nathaniel,<sup>4</sup> Thomas,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Oct. 9, 1813, in Cambridge; died there May 16, 1898; married there Oct. 4, 1838, Caroline Hovey, daughter of Timothy and Elizabeth (Smith) Stone, born June 1, 1817, in Newton. He was born in a house which was standing in 1893 on the north side of Main street, between Douglass and Columbia streets, where he lived for more than fifty years, never being away from Cambridge more than six weeks at a time. He received his education in the public schools, and at an early age went into the soap manufacturing business with his father, who was the pioneer in that industry in Cambridge, under the title of N. Livermore & Son, and continued in the business for nearly fifty years. In his days of business activity he was always at the head and front of all public movements which were for the good of his beloved city. He was the first president of the Cambridge City Bank, now the National City Bank, one of the original directors of the Cambridge Railroad and the Cambridge Gas Light Company, and president of the Cambridge Water Works. In politics he was a strong Whig and Republican and voted in sixty-two State elections, never having missed one after he became of age. He was four times elected to the State Legislature, serving in 1852 and '53, and 1867 and '68. He always took a deep interest in municipal affairs and served in the Common Council for two, and in the Board of Aldermen for three years; he was several times chosen on the School Committee, and was regarded as an authority on Cambridge municipal history and contributed largely to the Cambridge papers. In the days of the hand engines and volunteer fire companies he used to "run with Hydrant No. 4." He always attended the Austin Street Unitarian Church, and was one of its most prominent members, holding for years the positions of chairman of the Parish Committee and superintendent of the Sunday school.

Hon. Leverett Saltonstall. After leaving college he taught the Grammar school in Cambridge for one season.

He chose the profession of law and pursued his preparatory studies in the office of Oliver Crosby, of Dover, N. H. (H. C., 1795). On his admission to the bar he opened an office in Dover, where he practiced a short time, but in 1807 removed to Milford, where he lived for the rest of his life, engaged in his profession until he attained the age of 70 years, when he relinquished it, though he continued to transact business relating to the settlement of estates for his neighbors until near the close of his life. He was a member of the First Congregational Church in Milford for nearly twenty-five years; then a member of the First Unitarian Church in Wilton. Except when the merited confidence of his townsmen selected him to represent them in the State Legislature in 1829, '30, '31 and '38, he uniformly declined to become a candidate for office.

EDWARD ST. LOE LIVERMORE.

EDWARD ST. LOE<sup>6</sup> LIVERMORE (Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 5, 1762, in Portsmouth, N. H.; died Sept. 15, 1832, in Tewksbury; married (1) Aug. 7, 1784, in Boston, Mehitable, daughter of Robert and Mehitable (Rogers) Harris, of Concord, N. H., born there Dec. 30, 1764; died Jan. 30, 1793, in Portsmouth; married (2) May 2, 1799, Sarah Creese Stackpole, of Boston, born there Sept. 11, 1778; died Oct. 4, 1859, in Lowell. He lived in Portsmouth until he was thirteen, and a part of the time in Londonderry, N. H. In the winter of 1775 he was taken by his father to Holderness, N. H., where his instruction was superintended by his father, assisted probably by Dr. John Porter, a graduate of Harvard College and afterwards a lawyer in Plymouth, N. H. He is not known to have attended any academy or college. He studied law at Newburyport, under that eminent jurist, the late Chief Justice Parsons, and began practice in Concord, N. H., in 1783. He removed to Portsmouth and was solicitor for Rockingham County from 1791 to 1793. He was a member of the Convention, of which his father was president, chosen to revise the Constitution of the State of New Hampshire, which assembled in Concord, Sept. 7, 1791. He was U. S. District Attorney to the Circuit Court for the District of New Hampshire, from Feb., 1794 to 1797. He was Justice of the Superior Court of New Hampshire, from 1797 to 1799, quitting the bench a little more than a year after, upon the ground of the inadequacy of the salary, which was then no more than eight hundred dollars, and removed to Newburyport.

President Adams, Sept. 20, 1798, appointed him naval officer for the port of Portsmouth, a place from which he was removed by President Jefferson in 1802. He was representative in Congress from Essex County, from 1807 to 1811, then living in Newburyport, and was a zealous and leading Federalist in the State in the party contests which preceded and attended the war with England in 1812.

He was a resident of Boston after his return from Congress from 1811 to 1816, and delivered the Fourth of July oration in that city in 1813. He removed to Zanesville, Ohio, about 1816, then in the "Far West." Not satisfied with his frontier life he returned to Massachusetts and bought a home in that portion of the town of Tewksbury which is now a part of Lowell. He is buried in the Granary burying ground, in Boston.

His early manhood was spent upon the farm where he received his education from his father and mother. His subsequent career proved that he was well taught and well informed. That he was a classical scholar appears from the Latin and Greek text books used by him and containing his boyish signature, in the possession of one of his sons, and from his well remembered familiarity with classic writers. The earliest glimpse we have of him is, as a youth of sixteen, accompanying the Court to Keene in 1782. He studied law with his brother Edward in Concord, and opened an office there in 1792; in 1793 he moved to Chester where he was the second lawyer, and remained there until appointed judge. He was a representative from Chester to the General Court in 1794 and 1795. He was a shareholder in Concord, N. H., bridge, in 1795, and was one of the corporators especially named in "The New Hampshire Turnpike Road" Act. He was appointed solicitor for the county of Rockingham from Dec. 6, 1796, to June 20, 1798. He was associate justice of the Superior Court from Dec. 21, 1798, until Dec. 19, 1809, when he was appointed chief justice of the same court, serving in that capacity until 1813.

Upon the reorganization of the courts in the latter year, he consented to serve on the Supreme Court bench as associate justice under his old chief, Jeremiah Smith, and held that position until the next reorganization in 1816. About one year after his first appointment to the bench he removed from Chester to Holderness, and to the home of his parents. Soon after the death of his father in 1803, he became the owner of the Livermore farm, not by inheritance, but by purchase from his elder brother to whom it was bequeathed. It contained one thousand acres of field and forest, of intervals and undulations; a broad expanse in front of the mansion was half surrounded by the curve in the Pemigewasset. The payment for this domain taxed the toil and frugality of the purchaser for many years.

He was a Presidential elector in 1801. He received the degree of A. M. from Dartmouth College in 1802. He was a representative in Congress from 1817 to 1821, and again in 1823 to 1825; State Senator in 1821 and '22. July 5, 1822, he was commissioned judge of probate for the county of Grafton, but resigned the next year. He was Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas from Jan 27, 1825, to Dec. 29, 1832. His aggregate term of judicial service was one of the longest in our annals, covering about twenty-five years. At the close of his official life he sold his place in Holderness and removed to Campton, where he passed the rest of his life. He became attached to his new home in Campton, and gave it the name of "Craigie Burn."

Children, the first six born in Holderness, the last two in Campton, N. H. :

401. i. Arthur,<sup>7</sup> b. Jan. 7, 1811.
 ii. George, b. Aug. 10, 1812; d. June 4, 1891, in Concord, N. H. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1832; studied law with Hon. Ira Perley of New Hampshire, and with Mr. Lord of New York, and practiced law in New York until 1843, when he returned to New Hampshire by reason of ill health.
402. iii. Edward, b. Mar. 18, 1815.
 iv. Samuel, b. May 19, 1817; perished at sea by the wreck of the steamer Pulaski, June 14, 1838; educated at Exeter Academy, and served a mercantile apprenticeship with J. D. Gardiner & Co., of Boston; lived two years at Savannah, Ga.; unm.

GEORGE WHITEFIELD<sup>7</sup> LIVERMORE (Braddyl,<sup>6</sup> Jason,<sup>5</sup> Josiah,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), was born Oct. 15, 1794, in Paxton; died Aug. 21, 1870, in Colburn, Ind.; married Oct. 11, 1828, in Albany, N. Y., Sophia, daughter of Gen. Joseph and Asenath (Waters) Farnsworth, born Oct. 29, 1803, in Millbury; died Dec. 17, 1858, in Cambridge. In his eleventh year he lost the full use of his lower limbs through a fever, but could move around with the help of crutches or canes. He worked several years at mechanical business, and when about twenty-one years of age began fitting for college, having finished and fitted up a small room in the attic of his father's house as a study. Not having pecuniary means to defray the expenses of attending a preparatory school, he began his studies under the tuition of his father's clergyman; making but slow progress, he resumed mechanical labor, earned an amount of money with which he procured better instruction, and thus continued alternately to labor and study for about three years, the last six months of which he spent in his attic alone and without instruction from anyone; at the end of that time he presented himself at Harvard College for examination, and was admitted to the Freshman class. At the close of the vacation he returned to Cambridge with twelve dollars in his pocket as the whole pecuniary means to defray the expenses of a four years' course. Unaided and unassisted, except by his indomitable determination, untiring industry, and rigid economy, living much of the time literally on bread and water, at a cost of twenty-one cents a week, he earned by writing exercises for indolent students, and by services rendered the government of the College in various ways, sufficient to pay his bills for tuition, books, etc., and took his degree as Bachelor of Arts in 1823. A few weeks before he graduated he made an agreement to go as a private tutor into the family of Mrs. Catherine Bingham, at Natchez, Miss., and, on leave of absence from College, started in July of that year, going by stage to New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg, to Wheeling, Va.; thence on a keel boat down the Ohio river to Cincinnati; thence, in a small open skiff, to Louisville, Ky., and thence, on a small steamboat, down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to Natchez. While at Natchez he began the study of law in the office of Judge Turner, and after his return home completed his preparation under the instruction of Samuel M. Burnside, at Worcester, and was admitted to the bar. He formed a copartnership with Hon. Jonas L. Libby of Sutton, and subsequently opened an office and practiced in Millbury. In 1832 he closed his business in Millbury and removed with his wife and infant daughter to Westfield, N. Y., and took charge of his father-in-law's business. He returned to Massachusetts in 1839, leaving his family in Westfield, but they joined him in 1842, and he continued the practice of law.

After the death of his wife he gave up his profession and amused himself in mechanical inventions, two of the most important of which are machinery for making casks and for manufacturing paper collars and wristbands. At the centennial celebration in Paxton (his birthplace), on June 14, 1865, he delivered the address, which was full of interesting historical facts. He spent the last years of his life visiting his children and relatives in various parts of the country, having an income sufficient to enable him to travel as he pleased.

Children, the eldest born in Millbury, the others in Westfield:

- 437. i. Helen Sophia Farnsworth,<sup>8</sup> b. June 15, 1830.

It is recorded in Proverbs that "The glory of children are their fathers." Let us see if we have not somewhat to glory for. I had the pleasure, sometime ago, of looking over the old home in Massachusetts, which our grandfather left on coming to New York State. The very house where father was born, the fields he had roamed over, the school-house where his school days were spent, all had language to my mind that is not easily forgotten. They left their home there for one in Lisle in the fall of 1817. The pilgrimage of this family of eleven persons was made in twelve days, by means of four teams; they drove their cattle with them. Father had his eighteenth birthday on the road. Sometime during the next five years he formed the acquaintance of Polly Ayers, a resident of Lisle (whom he afterwards married), and living in a house then standing very near the big pine tree below the house where Isaac Howland now lives.

In 1822 they built the house in Caldwell Settlement, still standing and owned by Almond Reed. There they made their home for twelve years, where five of the children were born. The farm was sold to Isaiah E. Reed, in 1834. After a futile attempt to go to Michigan in 1835, they went to West Newark, moving back in the fall of 1837, and living in part of Henry Bunnell's house, where they stayed until the spring of 1838. Then the home which we as children knew most about of any place on earth was bought, price $300. The farm then consisted of a side hill south of Yorkshire, covered with woods. After cutting away the brush the larger part of the house now standing was built over our heads: then the scramble for life began in earnest, without means and with only $90 paid on the place. Two more visitors were welcomed to the family group, making the number eight. Pieces of land were taken to work on shares, sometimes at long distances from home. At one time father had to mortgage his half of a growing crop, to make a payment on a store debt. Mother not only had the care of us all, but she spun wool and flax, and wove it into cloth, and made clothes for us. The burden of debt was lifted with money we helped to earn. Our parents made this a dear spot to us. Mother's pantry looks good to me yet. Here we parted, one by one, to form other homes for ourselves. Here they had a home for thirty-four years, where at last they enjoyed all the necessities of life and a good many of the luxuries. The old farm was finally sold for ten times its original cost. We meet to-day an unbroken family of eight children, on this spot made sacred by the memory of days gone by. We have not seen each other face to face in twenty years.

Russell Livermore celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of his marriage on March 13, 1867, and all his children together with their husbands and wives and twenty-one grandchildren were present. The family are Congregationalists.

manufacture of woollens. In 1830 he moved to Blackwood, where he was one of the organizers of the Good Intent Mills Company, which he successfully managed for more than thirty years, amassing a large fortune. In early life he became associated with the First National Bank of Camden, N. J., and was the president of that institution for many years, retiring as its directing head at his own request. He has taken a lively interest in the affairs of the Presbyterian church of Blackwood for over half a century, contributing largely to its support, and assisting materially in everything pertaining to the welfare of the town. He has been an elder of the church for more than sixty years, and, together with the Rev. Dr. F. R. Grace, who was pastor of the church for over thirty years, has largely directed its affairs. He started the first Sunday school ever held in the place. Notwithstanding his advanced age (one hundred years old April 21, 1902), he personally superintends his large estate, both real and personal. He attends church services regularly, and is an early riser. He takes great pride in his crops of fruits and berries, and every year makes much wine, possessing at the present time wines of many years' vintage.

He was educated in the public school and in Leicester Academy. He was at first a teacher and then studied for the ministry, in Providence, R. I., under Rev. W. S. Balch. He was ordained in the Universalist denomination at Georgetown, in 1841, and preached in Georgetown and Fall River, Mass., Stafford, Conn., Weymouth, Duxbury and Malden. At the time of his marriage he was pastor of a church in Fall River. Soon after they moved to Connecticut, afterwards to Auburn, N. Y., and in 1857, to Chicago, where in that year he conducted a paper called the "New Covenant," of which he was both proprietor and editor, from 1858 to 1869. This paper in those years was one of the leading Universalist journals, and he was a thoroughly furnished and well equipped theological writer, and with the trenchant and graceful pen of Mrs. Livermore, who was associated with her husband in the conduct of the paper, the "New Covenant" became widely known. He was pastor of the Second Universalist Church in Chicago, and for thirteen years was a missionary in the Northwest. In 1870 he returned to Massachusetts, and from 1870 to 1882 preached in Hingham, and during that time and until his death lived in Melrose. He received the degree of A. M. from the Lombard University at Galesburg, Ill. He was the author of several religious books. He went abroad with his wife several times on lecturing tours, and travelled all over the country with her. She is the celebrated Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, and for a sketch of her life see "The Women of the Century," by Charles W. Moulton of Buffalo, N. Y. She is now (April, 1902) living in Melrose.

MANIN<sup>7</sup> LIVERMORE (Samuel,<sup>6</sup> Daniel,<sup>5</sup> Edmund,<sup>4</sup> Samuel,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born Sept. 18, 1810, in Brookfield, N. Y.; married Aug. 30, 1853, in Alfred Centre, N. Y., Emeline Smith, born Aug. 15, 1820, in Alfred, N. Y. At the age of fourteen he moved to Independence, N. Y.; as he was of small stature and of a not very strong constitution he began to learn the trade of a tailor in Hornellsville, N. Y., and finished it in Danesville, afterwards returning to Hornellsville; he then went to Dresden, N. Y., and worked with his cousin Fidus Livermore. From Dresden he travelled on foot to Buffalo and to Youngstown, N. Y., and thence crossed over into Canada, working at his trade in several towns, but not liking the severe winters he determined to go South; so he took a boat at Port Stanley and crossed Lake Erie, landing in Cleveland, Ohio, and while there had a very severe attack of yellow fever, which caused nearly all his hair to come out, leaving him very bald. He then went to Cincinnati and thence by boat down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans. He remained in the South sixteen years, during which he crossed over the Cumberland mountains from Georgia to Kentucky, on foot; owing to the defective mail service at that time, his letters failed to reach home and he was given up for dead, but after a number of years one of his brothers chanced to pick up a Southern paper in which Manin had an advertisement of his business; he immediately wrote the latter, who was glad enough to hear from home, and shortly after came North to Independence, where he settled, building himself a house and in a short time was married. He moved to Alfred, in 1870, where he was living when last heard from. He is a member of the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

was a lady of reputation as a teacher; married (2) June 24, 1852, in Jackson, Mrs. Sarah Eliza (Lewis) Safford (sister to his first wife and widow of Dr. Horace B. Safford, to whom she was married in 1847, and who died March 20, 1850), born Jan. 16, 1828, in Benton.

His school instruction ceased when he was fifteen years of age and he was then apprenticed to the trade of a tailor. After two years he went to Western New York, where for two or three years he interspersed his mechanical labor with study and mental culture. During the building of the "Crooked Lake Canal" he carried on a shop in connection with other general business at Dresden, N. Y., remaining there until 1836. At this time he found an opportunity to put into execution a long-cherished design and he became a student in the law office of James L. Seeley, in Dundee, N. Y.

He moved to Michigan and settled in Jackson in 1839, and entered the law office of Johnson & Higby. There he completed three years of legal study and passed the probation of six months' residence in Michigan, at that time required. He was admitted to practice upon due examination before Hon. William A. Fletcher, then Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State.

He soon became personally known to almost every resident of the village, and acquired a practice which gave him prominence throughout the neighboring counties. From the time he first began practice he had never missed attendance at a single term of court in his county, while his office business, involving large collections, was always marked by promptness, care, and strict integrity. In 1840, he acted as Deputy United States Marshal in taking the census of the northern half of Jackson Co. In 1841, and for several years subsequently, he held the office of Justice of the Peace. In the fall of 1842, he was elected by the Democrats to the lower house of the State Legislature and was re-elected the following year. He made a strong record in the House, and at the next election he was nominated for the State Senate, but declined. He held the office of Prosecuting Attorney for Jackson Co. for several terms, twice by Executive appointment (1846 and 1848) and subsequently by election, after the office became elective. In 1846, he became senior in the law partnership of Livermore & Wood, which continued without interruption until 1867. He twice (1860 and 1872) represented the Democrats of Michigan in National Convention. He was on the Democratic State ticket in 1868, for Presidential Elector; was the Democratic candidate for Congress in his district in 1874, but was defeated, and again a candidate in 1876, and again defeated.

In the early days of the war he was appointed by Governor Blair, commandant of the camp at Jackson, where he devoted six months to raising troops, and organizing the 20th and 26th regiments of Michigan infantry. He was earnestly solicited to take a command in the field but declined, although giving his active support to the Government throughout the war. He gave material aid toward the construction of the six railways centering in Jackson. He was nine years president of the school board in his district. In 1873, he formed a law partnership with Richmond Livermore, his nephew and pupil, under the firm name of F. & R. Livermore, which continued until his death. He was elected a vice-president of the Pioneer Society of the State of Michigan, April 22, 1874. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and was the first Worshipful Master of Jackson Lodge, No. 50, and also a Knight Templar.

For many generations the homestead of the family has been on what is now School street, in the north-eastern part of the old town of Watertown, and in the vicinity of Fresh Pond. The house in which he was born was burned in his boyhood, and replaced by his father with the present spacious dwelling. His advantages of education were limited to the district school, then open but a few months in the year. The work and responsibility of the farm, intercourse with men, and acquaintance with practical affairs formed his chief means of education. Early in life he united with the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church of the town. He was chosen a deacon of this church in his twenty-fourth year, an office which he held for more than half a century. He early became a member of the Watertown and Waltham Artillery Company, of which he was chosen lieutenant in 1821, and rose to be captain, major of the First Regiment of Artillery, First Brigade, Third Division, M. V. M., in 1825, lieutenant colonel in 1828, and colonel in 1829. He was elected first lieutenant of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston in 1834. He seems never to have lost his interest in military parades, and long after he had withdrawn from the company he used to attend the trainings and musters.

He was deeply interested in politics; in early life an ardent Whig, he remained true to that party until the great struggle for freedom in Kansas, when he became identified with the Free Soil, and afterwards with the Republican party. In 1844 he was elected on the Whig ticket to the House of Representatives of the State Legislature; but when that party broke up, on the slavery issue, he took his stand on the side of freedom and ever after gave his vote and influence to sustain the good cause. He was elected on the board of selectmen in Watertown from 1840 to 1846 and from 1857 to 1859, and for two years was a member of the school committee. In 1859, when Belmont was incorporated, that portion of Watertown, where he lived, was annexed to the new town. Here he became identified with a new church and a new community. He was soon chosen on the board of selectmen and one of the assessors. He was a member of Pequotette Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Watertown. His children, Convers Francis Livermore and Hepsie Cotting Livermore are still living together in the homestead on School street.

His youth, until he was fifteen, was passed, like that of most country boys, in hard work on the farm in summer, and in the district school in winter. His brother Jonathan shared with him these toils and pleasures. In 1826 he spent six months in Chelmsford, with his uncle Rev. Abiel Abbot, D. D., after whom he was named, and attended the academy kept by Mr. Wallace. In September of the same year he entered Phillips Academy, at

ABIEL ABBOT LIVERMORE.

Exeter, N. H., then under the care of those eminent teachers Benj. Abbot, LL. D., Gideon I. Soule, LL. D., and Joseph Hale Abbot, A. M.; here he passed three years fitting for college, but for two winters he was absent keeping district school in his native town. He was examined and admitted to the Freshman class in Harvard College in 1829, without conditions. While in Cambridge at that time he heard the splendid oration of Orville Dewey before the Phi Beta Kappa society, and caught some inspiration from his stirring challenge to what is best and highest in man. The first college year was passed in Exeter, pursuing the Freshman studies. This was done for the sake of economy. During the four years at Phillips Academy he boarded with the Misses Deborah and Hannah Gilman, on Water street. Returning to Cambridge in 1830, and entering the Sophomore class unconditioned, the next three years were passed there. Francis Bowen and he roomed together, and boarded the first year at Mrs. Nichol's on the north-east corner of the Common, next door east of Dr. Follen's. He was graduated in 1833, having as a part at Commencement a Dissertation on "The effect of maritime enterprise on the character of nations."

During college life he belonged to the Hasty Pudding Club, the Institute of 1770, the religious society, the temperance society, La Réunion Sociale, and Phi Beta Kappa. In 1833 he entered the Cambridge Divinity School. During the last term of the Junior year, through the Senior year of the undergraduate course, and for three years in the Divinity School, he was engaged in teaching and fitting boys for college. Graduating from the Divinity School in 1836, he received a call to settle in Keene, N. H., and was ordained over the Unitarian church in that town Nov. 2, 1836.

While pastor of the Keene society he published a "Commentary" in three volumes on the Gospels and Acts of the Apostles; also a "Review of the Mexican War," and several occasional discourses, and edited a "Marriage Offering" and Priestley's "Corruptions of Christianity." In April, 1850, he received a call to become the pastor of the Unitarian Society in Cincinnati, Ohio, and removed to that city in May, for the benefit of a milder climate, his health having become impaired by a severe bronchial affection. In the autumn of 1856 he removed to New York, on an invitation to become the editor of the Christian Inquirer, the organ of the Unitarian faith in that city. He became the pastor of the Unitarian church in Yonkers, on the Hudson, in June, 1857. The joint duties of the editorship and the pastorate were fulfilled until the summer of 1863, when he was invited to take the Presidency of the Meadville Theological School. Besides the duties of the school he completed his "Commentary" on the remaining books of the New Testament, in two volumes, and printed several reviews, sketches of travels, syllabuses of lectures and occasional sermons. After his retirement from the Meadville Theological School, Harvard College conferred upon him the degree of D. D. No children.

He was educated at the schools in his native town, at Phillips Academy in Exeter, N. H., and Pinkerton Academy in Derry, N. H. In 1832 he went with the expedition of his cousin, Nathaniel Wyeth, into the wild country west of the Mississippi, and on returning he settled in Galena, Ill., then a mining town of about a thousand inhabitants. He there taught school, studied medicine and dentistry, and practiced dentistry until the spring of 1849, when he went with his wife and surviving children, by river, to St. Joseph, Mo., and there took the emigrant trail for California; his daughter died on the way. He engaged in business and practiced dentistry in Sacramento from his arrival in 1849 to 1851, and in Nevada, Cal., from 1851 to 1854. At the latter place, with three associates, he built and owned works to supply the people with water for domestic use. In 1854 he again went to live in Galena and there practiced dentistry until his death.

He was graduated from Harvard College in 1842; after completing a three years' course in the theological school in Cambridge, graduating in 1846, he was settled over the Unitarian church in East Boston, being ordained March 24, 1847. The First Unitarian church in Clinton voted, April 7, 1851, to invite him to preach for one year, the salary to be at first $10 per Sunday, then at the rate of $600 a year, and afterwards $700 a year. He resigned his position in East Boston and accepted their invitation. He was a member of the School Committee in Clinton in 1853, '56, '57, and a teacher in the grammar school for a few weeks. He was editor of the Courant from Jan. 6, 1855, to Sept. 5, 1857.

Oct. 1, 1857, he accepted a call to Lexington, where he remained nine years; shortly after his resignation he removed to Cambridge and established a home for himself on the old Jarvis homestead, in the shadow of the trees set out by his grandfather a hundred years before. In 1867 he took charge of the Unitarian church in Danvers. In 1881 he broke down in health and wished to resign his charge, but so strong was the attachment of his people to him that they refused to accept his resignation, and after a year's vacation he resumed his place there and retained it, with some interruptions, until his death.

For several years he was the assistant of Rev. Charles Lowe, the secretary of the American Unitarian Association, and was afterwards secretary of the Sunday School Society, at the same time carrying on his regular work at Danvers. While pastor at Lexington, and in the first years of his ministry at Danvers, he compiled the "Hymn Tune Book," so extensively used in the Unitarian churches.

office in Hallowell, later absorbed by the Western Union Telegraph Co., and many of the best operators in the country received their first lesson from him. He retired from active service in August, 1891, the oldest telegrapher in the country. He was connected with the firm of Masters & Livermore, who published the Maine Farmers' Almanac, which had a large circulation throughout the country. On several occasions he was asked to accept the nomination for mayor of Hallowell, or for the Legislature, but he would never allow his name to be used, and apparently took little interest in politics. The title of colonel, by which he was known all over the country, was given him while he was in command of a company of artillery in the State militia. It is said that a daughter of Col. Livermore was the first woman to read telegraphy by sound.

HORATIO GATES<sup>7</sup> LIVERMORE (Isaac,<sup>6</sup> Elijah,<sup>5</sup> Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born March 16, 1807, in Livermore, Me.; married Oct. 26, 1832, in Boston, Elizabeth King Slater, born there May 8, 1809; died Jan. 13, 1892, in Rockridge, Oakland, Cal. He received a liberal education, and in his early manhood removed to Boston, where he engaged in mercantile business until 1850. At this latter period he made the journey overland to California, and on arrival settled in Georgetown, El Dorado Co., whence in 1854 he was elected State senator. In 1856, becoming impressed with the great natural advantages of Folsom and the value of the property and franchises of the Natoma Water Company, he became interested therein. In the course of a few years he and his associates, by successive purchases, acquired a controlling interest in the company and he became its president and manager. Realizing the importance of the water power which the American River affords at this place, he projected plans for its utilization, which have made there a manufacturing power equal to that of Lowell.

In order to utilize the granite quarries which the locality possesses, he originated the idea of a branch State prison to be located thereon, whereby the idle convicts could be beneficially employed at stone quarrying and cutting; though opposed, he succeeded in carrying his point. He was among the earliest to recognize the value of the "Foot Hill" lands for vineyard and orchard purposes, and purchased for the Natoma Company a large portion of the Leidesdorf grant (about ten thousand acres of land adjoining the town of Folsom). To demonstrate their capability he caused orchards and vineyards to be planted to the extent of about five hundred acres. For the conversion of their products he also caused to be erected by far the largest fruit-drying and raisin-making establishment in the State. He also established a large wine manufactory in Folsom.

He was thrown on his own resources at an early age, owing to the death of his father, and was a farmer, surveyor, school teacher and printer by turns, until he had qualified himself in 1833 to practice law. He settled in Hampden in 1833, and in 1835 was elected to the Legislature. He was re-elected three times in succession, serving each session as Speaker of the House. In 1840 he was a candidate for Congress as a Jackson Democrat, but was defeated by Elisha H. Allen, who was afterwards chief justice of the Hawaiian Government. He was elected to Congress in 1843, and re-elected for a second term. In the House he became prominent as an anti-slavery leader. His first speech was an attack on the "gag law," and won a personal compliment from Hon. John Quincy Adams. He also made an attack on the practice of duelling, and tried to have the House expel Clingman and Yancey for fighting a duel. He opposed the annexation of Texas as a slave State, and arraigned the slave power for plotting to betray Oregon into the hands of the British Government. He was also instrumental in presenting "the Wilmot Proviso" in the House, when it came up for decisive action. In 1846 he was the Democratic anti-slavery candidate for the United States Senate. The pro-slavery Democrats blocked the election for six weeks, and defeated him by one vote. In 1848 he defeated the pro-slavery wing of his party by one vote, and entered the Senate to succeed John Fairfield, who had died. In 1851 he again defeated the slave party of Maine in the Legislature by one vote, and was re-elected to the Senate for a full term. He was chairman of the committee on commerce in the Senate for nine years, but resigned and repudiated the Democratic party when it repealed the Missouri compromise.

In 1856 he became one of the founders of the Republican party, and as the Republican candidate for Governor of Maine, took the State into the Republican party. In 1857 he was re-elected to the Senate as a Republican. In 1860 he favored the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for President, and was the means of obtaining some votes for Lincoln from Maine in the convention. He himself was nominated for Vice-President, although he did not expect nor desire the place. He enjoyed very friendly and close relations with Lincoln,—in fact, Lincoln showed him the Emancipation Proclamation before the cabinet even knew he had written it. Lincoln also gave him the order to arm the negroes, and finally offered him the position of Secretary of the Treasury. At the request of Hon. Charles Sumner, President Johnson appointed him collector of the port of Boston, but he resigned because he disapproved Johnson's policy of reconstruction, and led an attack on that policy. In 1869 and 1875 he was again elected to the Senate. Declining a re-election in 1881, President Garfield appointed him United States minister to Spain, but he resigned the office in a year and retired to private life. His last public services were to advocate the abolishment of capital punishment in Maine, and to urge the nationalization of Lincoln's birthday as a holiday.

Children (Hamlin), the youngest born in Bangor, the others in Hampden :

his head, which Livermore warded off, but in so doing received a severe wound in the arm.

He afterwards removed to Baltimore where he was one of the companions of Hanson in his resistance to the Baltimore mob, which at the beginning of the War of 1812 aimed so serious a blow at the liberty of the press, by assaulting the office of the Federal Republican and destroying the lives of some of its defenders.

From Baltimore he went to New Orleans, where he obtained prominent rank and uncommon success as an advocate. It was here that he first began that course of studies in the civil law, the Spanish and French law, and the law of other nations of Continental Europe, in which he afterwards rose to so high a reputation. He mastered many of the higher branches of the jurisprudence of Rome, and of the modern nations, and, in profound knowledge of the early writers of the subject, had few rivals or equals. His arguments at the bar were not only eloquent, but they abounded with recondite and accurate learning. He was also distinguished as an author. He published a work on the "Law of Agency," at an early period of his professional life, and subsequently enlarged it, in a second edition, to two volumes. It is still a standard book in the profession, and at the time of the publication of the second edition, it was incomparably superior to any other treatise on the same subject. He also published at New Orleans, in 1828, two "Preliminary Dissertations" on the "Conflict of Laws," foreign and domestic, which present a concise but accurate view of the various systems and opinions of the most distinguished jurists of Europe, and thus, for the first time, brought to the knowledge of the American bar, the names and merits of many of these authors.

By his will he bequeathed to Harvard College his whole library of foreign law, amounting to upwards of three hundred costly volumes. The value of this donation may be in some measure comprehended by the fact that it was appraised in the inventory of his estate at the sum of $6,000. He was unmarried. He died while on a journey to visit his relatives and friends in New England.

HARRIET<sup>7</sup> LIVERMORE (Edward,<sup>6</sup> Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 14, 1788, in Concord, N. H.; died unmarried March 30, 1868, in West Philadelphia, Pa. She was of medium height and unusually graceful, and had a fair complexion; her hair, a glossy black, was a yard and a quarter in length; her form not muscular but nervous, delicate and frail. In her early youth she was passionately fond of gay and costly attire. Though her mother died when she was only five years old, she fondly cherished her memory and bitterly lamented her death. At the age of eight she was placed in a boarding school in Haverhill, where, through the intimacy between her father and Judge Minot, she entered the best society. She subsequently lived on Spring Street, in Newburyport, and attended the Byfield Female Seminary, and later, Atkinson Academy. While a student in this last institution she became acquainted with Moses H. Elliott, whose home was the old "Garrison House" in East Haverhill. Their acquaintance was continued after their academy days were over, and in 1811 she began to teach school, first for one or two terms in a private house, and then, for several terms, in the old brown district school-house in East Haverhill, which was close to young Elliott's home. He became a physician and began to practice at Portsmouth, N. H. It was expected that marriage would follow their intimacy, but both families opposed it and the acquaintance was broken, and how far it affected their subsequent lives cannot be known. He died Sept. 22, 1822, in Pensacola, Fla., at the age of thirty-three, a victim to yellow fever.

When she began to teach at East Haverhill at the age of twenty-three, she professed conversion, and in 1818 joined the Congregational church, though she had been in the Episcopal communion since she was fourteen. In 1825 she was transferred to the Baptist church, which she soon discarded. The very devout manner in which she taught her pupils to repeat the Lord's Prayer and one of the psalms in concert, was never forgotten by them. With closed eyes, and in a voice as soft and low as that of an angel, she impressed the recitation upon them. She taught her girl-pupils needle-work and embroidery of her own exquisite designs, and specimens of the work of both are still extant in the families of some of her scholars.

As early as 1824 she spoke publicly in the old schoolhouse in which she had taught at East Haverhill, and at Newton, N. H., and surrounding towns. In 1825 she abandoned teaching and entered upon her life work as an evangelist, assuming the name of "The Pilgrim Stranger." She spoke in schoolhouses, churches, and in any room she could obtain, or in the open air. At one time, in Philadelphia, she addressed a large number of sailors upon a wharf. She travelled by stage, private conveyance, or on foot. "Twice for want of money," she wrote, "I walked until my feet were festered, and my whole frame entirely exhausted." She was pleasing as a speaker, and attracted large crowds.

When her father was in Congress she was with him in Washington, and entered into the society to which his position admitted her. In January, 1827, she addressed the assembled Congress in the Hall of Representatives on religion, the President (Hon. John Quincy Adams) and his secretary being present. She is said to have sung melodiously, her softest notes filling the vast room, which was packed with people, including the hall, lobby and gallery. She was attended by a friend, both dressed in a style so simple and neat that anyone would have taken them for Quakers. She ascended the platform and occupied the Speaker's chair, and her friend seated herself by her. She began in the usual manner by prayer and singing, and held the attention of her audience throughout. During Andrew Jackson's presidency she again addressed Congress in the Hall of Representatives, and produced similar effects, and again during Martin Van Buren's presidency in 1838, and during John Tyler's presidency in 1843.

In May, 1832, she went to the far West, and spent a year, principally among the Indians at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., travelling six thousand miles, most of the distance through the wilderness. She wished to be of service to them, as she believed that they were of Israel and would yet be restored to Jerusalem, and intended to spend her life among them, but as the Commissioners on Indian Affairs objected, her project had to be abandoned. She visited the Holy Land four times, spending in all sixteen years of her life in that region, in Egypt, and in various other foreign countries, crossing the Atlantic ten times.

She spent some time among the Dunkers, and was regarded by them as a gifted Christian minister. Her last days were marked by the same traits of character that had been prominent in her earlier years, but she had grown impatient with age. Her virtues far exceeded her faults, and in spite of her eccentricities she accomplished much good in the service of her Master. She was indeed a singular and remarkable woman, more pitiable than censurable. No one knows what fierce and unsuccessful struggles she had, to overcome the violence of her peculiar disposition. After returning in 1862 from her last voyage to Jerusalem, she was for several years supported by her relatives. She died in the house of a friend in West Philadelphia, and is buried in the lot of Mrs. Margaret F. Worrell, in the Dunkers' cemetery, and the graves of both are side by side.

HENRY JACKSON<sup>7</sup> LIVERMORE (Edward,<sup>6</sup> Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born June 5, 1816, in Wheeling, Va.; died Feb. 2, 1874, in Weyauwega, Wis.; married Sept. 1, 1853, in Lawrence, Susan Hurd Homer, born May 19, 1829, in Amesbury. When he was about a year old his parents moved to Lowell, where he grew up; he was educated at Hampton Academy, Hampton, N. H., and at Phillips Academy, Andover. He was a hardware merchant in New York for a few years, and in 1847, went to Lawrence and was engaged in the same business there for about six years. He was third lieutenant of the Lawrence Light Infantry (company I), 6th regiment M. V. M., in 1850; this company is now known as company F, 9th regiment. He became a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1851. He afterwards moved to Oshkosh and Milwaukee, Wis., and Chicago, Ill., and later kept a general country store in Fremont, Wis., where he was postmaster during President Johnson's administration. He was a member of Gre-

While studying shorthand about 1850, he invented a typewriter; the first machine he constructed resembled the standard typewriters of the present day, but not being satisfied, he continued to improve it, until at last he made a machine which he named Permutation Typograph or Pocket Printing Machine;

one of these can be seen in a case not far from the door by which one enters the main hall of the Patent Office in Washington. The box itself was of steel, four and one-half inches long, two and one-half inches wide, and one and a quarter inches deep. All the characters of the alphabet were formed by means of six keys, used singly or in combination. The box contained a roll of paper twenty feet long, which received the impression from the keys, the letters being inked by a simple process; this paper was wide enough to admit twenty letters to the line, and about sixty lines could be printed upon one foot. He took out letters patent in England and America in 1863. It was never in public use, as he died before introducing it. He had no children.

During his boyhood, and until his seventeenth year, he worked on his father's farm, attending the district school during the winters, and then for one year a select school in Earlville, N. Y.; at eighteen years of age he left home and engaged in various kinds of mercantile business until the fall of 1855, when he took a stock of staple and fancy dry goods to Sandusky, O., and, in company with D. S. Benson, began business. This partnership was dissolved in the winter of 1856-7, and he continued the business alone until shortly before the beginning of the Civil war in 1861. He enlisted as a private in company K, 3d Ohio Vol. Cavalry, at Monroeville, O., Sept. 4, 1861, and was promoted to be first lieutenant Nov. 1, 1861. He took part in the battle of Pittsburg Landing, April, 1862, and in the battles of Corinth and Parryville during the same summer. He was taken prisoner Oct. 17, 1862, by Gen. John Morgan, while encamped on Henry Clay's "Ashland" farm, near Lexington, Ky., the command being surrounded during the night; he was dismounted and disarmed, and taken to Gen. Morgan, who ordered his horse and equipage, with side arms, to be returned at once, being private property. He was soon released on parole, and exchanged in Dec., 1862. He was then appointed military detective by order of Secretary Stanton, and stationed at Columbus, O.; he was relieved in Feb., 1863, and joined his regiment at Murfreesborough, Tenn., having been promoted captain of company B, Feb. 1, 1863. From this time until he was mustered out, he took part in over ninety battles and sharp skirmishes, among them being Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Farmington, Tenn., Moulton, Ala., Big Shanty, Noonday Creek, Kenesaw Mountain, Stone Mountain, Yellow River, Lovejoy, Atlanta, Good Hope Church, Blue Mountain, Rome, Ga., Gadsden, Selma, Ala., and Columbus, Ga. At the close of the Atlanta campaign he was promoted major, Nov. 30, 1864, and after the battle of Selma promoted to be lieutenant-colonel, April 8, 1865. Soon after, in May, 1865, he was appointed president of the court martial and military commission of cavalry corps of the military division of the Mississippi, which position he held until Aug. 4, 1865, when he was mustered out of service with his regiment at Edgefield, Tenn.

He removed to Chicago, and for seven years was with Field, Palmer and Leiter, and with Hollister and Phelps, having charge of their curtain and upholstery department; he then took charge of the same department with J. V. Farwell & Co. for one year, and when that firm closed out their retail business he bought their stock of curtains and upholstery and began business under the firm name of Livermore & Crooker. In Nov., 1873, he bought out Mr. Crooker, and continued on his own account. He has a daughter.

He studied first in Alfred University, N. Y., and then for a while in Milton College, Wisconsin. Returning to Alfred University, he pursued a classical course, with occasional interruptions, occasioned by teaching public and select schools. On Oct. 7, 1861, he was mustered in at Elmira, N. Y., as a private in company C, 85th regiment N. Y. Vols., commanded by Capt. Hiram C. Miller; was promoted sergeant and then hospital steward. During the Peninsular campaign under Gen. George B. McClellan, in the spring of 1862, he contracted typhoid fever and in the following July was discharged from the service at Washington, D. C. In the autumn of the same year he had so far recovered as to admit of his returning to his studies in the university, where he remained until Jan., 1864, when, in company with several other students and friends, he re-enlisted. He was immediately detailed on special service at the surgeon's headquarters, at the place of rendezvous in Elmira, and retained in the same service after joining his regiment (5th N. Y. Heavy Artillery) at Harper's Ferry, Va. In March, 1865, he was promoted first lieutenant and subsequently detailed on the staff of General Stevenson at Harper's Ferry, in which capacity he remained until mustered out at the close of the war in July, 1865.

He returned to the university to complete his course, and was graduated with the degree of B. A. in 1866. He was soon called to ordination in the gospel ministry by the church in Independence, of which he was a member, and soon after settled as pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist Church at Greenmanville (Mystic), Conn. Here he remained nearly two years, supplying also the First Day Baptist Church, in North Stonington, Conn., until accepting a call to the principalship of the De Ruyter Institute, at De Ruyter, he removed thither. In this capacity he labored three and a half years, when he accepted a call to the pastorate of the Walworth Seventh Day Baptist Church, Wisconsin, and at the same time the principalship of the "Big Foot Academy" in the same place. Here he remained six years, part of the time (two years) pursuing theological studies in the Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill. In 1877, he accepted a call to a pastorate in New Market, N. J., and completed his course in theology in the Union Theological Seminary in New York City in 1879. He removed from New Market to Alfred Centre, N. Y., April 17, 1893, and was pastor of the church there for several years, with the exception of a temporary absence of four years, during which he was engaged as financial agent of Alfred University. He now resides at Dunellen, N. J.

With his parents he moved to Groton when he was quite young; he was brought up on a farm, attending school for a while at Groton Academy. When a young man he worked in the store of Mr. Nightingale in Boston. In 1855 he went to Kansas, where he lived on a farm for nine years. He returned to Massachusetts in the spring of 1864, and shortly after enlisted in the army for one year; but the war closed after he had served ten months. He afterwards lived with his father on a farm in Lunenburg, which he helped to carry on for a few years; he then moved to Fitchburg, where he kept a store; then worked for his brother Charles, in a store in Shirley. He afterwards bought a farm in that town, and when his health gave out moved into the village. His family are still living there.

Martha Elizabeth, daughter of Jehiel and Melissa (Hildreth) Todd, born Sept. 5, 1841, in Boston. He was fitted for college in the Lawrence Academy in his native town, and in the autumn of 1859 entered the freshman class of Williams College, but remained there only one year. Then he attended the Albany Law School and was admitted to the bar in that city. Soon after, while studying the Massachusetts code of laws, preparatory to practice, the Civil war broke out; he was one of the first to respond to the call for troops, and, as a member of company B of the 6th Mass. regiment, was in the march through Baltimore, April 19, 1861. Returning to Massachusetts, he worked to promote enlistments and finally went out again himself in troop C, 3d R. I. cavalry, in which he became a sergeant, and on Oct. 13, 1863, was mustered into the U. S. service. March 25, 1864, he was commissioned as second lieutenant and assigned to duty in troop L of the same regiment. After serving a year he resigned his commission, March 20, 1865, and was honorably discharged.

Soon after the close of the war he went to Orange, and entered the office of Hunt, Waite & Flint. The firm was changed in 1872 to the Rodney Hunt Machine Company, of which he became secretary, a position he held until his death, and for a long time was one of the directors.

More frequently than any other citizen, while he lived in Orange, he was chosen to serve as moderator at town meetings. He was elected to the House of Representatives in 1878, serving in the Legislature of 1879; in 1882 he was elected senator from his district, and re-elected in 1883. He was an active and earnest member of the Congregational church, and was for years superintendent of the Sunday school as well as teacher. He was a prominent Odd Fellow, being a past grand and one of the trustees of Social Lodge. He was also a member of Gen. Sedgewick Post of the Grand Army, having been one of its charter members and earliest commanders. His widow lives in Orange.

During his early life he was engaged in the jewelry business in Providence, R. I., and was considered the most expert die-cutter that the manufacturing jewellers had to depend upon, for their designs and tools to perfect their work. He was the general superintendent of the Spencer Repeating Rifle Works in Boston during the early '60's, perfecting the famous rifle used during the Civil war. He became an ardent worker for the eight-hour league, and for a few years was a member of the common council of Boston from Ward 11. At that time he lived on Shawmut avenue, corner of Lenox street. After the war was over he moved to New York City, and opened the first "dollar store" that became prominent on Broadway. Later on he moved to Metuchen, N. J., and introduced there the artesian drive well, of which many at the present time bear his name.

When the Lehigh Valley railroad passed through that town he sold his property, and after being elected judge of that district, and serving three years, he returned to Providence in 1871, identifying himself again with the manufacture of jewelry, under the firm name of Rathburn, Leonard & Livermore, until the death of both of his partners, when he continued the business alone for a short time. He was the first person publicly to introduce a successful fountain and stylographic pen, and that which bears his name has come to be very extensively used in this and foreign countries. He established agencies for its sale in the principal cities here and in Europe.

ter of George Daniels, his brother, born Sept. 24, 1844, in Newmarket, N. H.; died April 18, 1879, in Dorchester.

He went with his parents overland from St. Joseph, Mo., to California, in 1849, mainly on horseback; after living in California five years, he was sent to school in Milford. In 1859-60 he was at Appleton Academy, Mount Vernon, N. H., and in 1860-61 he was in Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill.

On June 24, 1861, at Poolesville, Md., he enlisted as a private in the 1st regiment, N. H. Vols., which was then in front of the enemy on the Potomac, and served until the expiration of its term, Aug. 9, 1861. Returning with this regiment to New Hampshire, he again enlisted in the 5th N. H. Vols., Oct. 12, 1861, and was made first sergeant of company K. He served in the ranks (taking part in the siege of Yorktown and the battle of Fair Oaks) until June 10, 1862, when he was promoted to second lieutenant, and served in this capacity through the Peninsular and Maryland campaigns, taking part in the battles of Peach Orchard, Savage Station, White Oak Swamp, Charles City Cross Roads, Malvern Hill and Antietam (being wounded at Malvern Hill). He was promoted to first lieutenant Dec. 14, 1862, and captain March 3, 1863, and served as such, in the line, in the battles of Chancellorsville and Brandy Station. On July 1, 1863, he was appointed on the staff of Gen. Hancock, commanding the 2d Army Corps, and in that position took part in the battle of Gettysburg; and on the staffs of Gens. William Hayes and Warren, commanding the 2d corps, he took part in the battles of Auburn, Bristow Station and Mine Run, in 1863.

He resumed command of his company at Point Lookout, in Dec., 1863, and there by detail, Jan. 27, 1864, commanded the prisoners of war who took the oath of allegiance, forming a battalion of them. In April, 1864, he took the field on the staff of Gen. Hinks, commanding the 3d division, 18th Army Corps, and as such served in the expedition up the James, in the battles of Baylo's Farm and Petersburg. From June 29, 1864, to Aug. 30, 1864, he was on the staff of Gen. W. F. Smith, and his successors, Gens. Martindale and Ord, commanding the 18th Army Corps, chiefly as acting assistant inspector general of the corps, and taking part in the siege of Petersburg and the battle of the Mine. From Aug. 30, 1864, to April 6, 1865, he served as assistant to the inspector general on the staff of Gen. Hancock and his successor, Gen. Humphreys, commanding the 2d Army Corps, and was in the siege of Petersburg and the two battles of Boydton Plank Road, the battle of Hatchers Run, the assault on Petersburg works, battles of Sutherland's Station, Sailor's Creek and Farmville, and several other battles in the pursuit of Gen. Lee's army. On Oct. 28, 1864, he was commissioned major of the 5th N. H. Vols. April 5, 1865, he was made brevet lieutenant colonel and colonel of U. S. Vols. Jan. 17, 1865, he was commissioned colonel of the 18th N. H. Vols. and commanded that regiment from April 8, 1865, to its disbandment, June 23, 1865.

He studied law with Hon. Bainbridge Wadleigh, in Milford, N. H., from July, 1865, to Jan., 1868. He was admitted to the bar in Hillsborough Co., N. H., in Jan., 1868, and practiced there until July, 1868, and in Boston from July, 1868, to March, 1879, and again from June, 1885, to March, 1890. He was manager of the properties and works of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co., in New Hampshire, from March, 1879, to June, 1885, and was elected vice-president of the Calumet & Hecla Mining Co., Nov. 1, 1889. He was commander of John A. Andrew Post 15, G. A. R., Department of Massachusetts, in 1870, and commander of the Massachusetts Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, in 1881 and 1882. He was one of the park commissioners of Boston, from 1889 to 1892, and served on the Board of Metropolitan Park Commission, in 1897. He is a member of the Military Historical Society of Massachusetts, and is also the author of "Numbers and Losses in the Civil War in America, 1861-65," a second edition of which was published in 1901.

He moved with his parents to Madison, Wis., and afterwards to Polo, Ogle Co., Ill. At the age of fourteen years, nine months and nineteen days, he enlisted as a private soldier in company H, 55th Ill. Vols., at Polo, Oct. 28, 1861, for three years or during the war, and was mustered in at Camp Douglas, Chicago, the following day. In company with his regiment, he participated in the battles of Shiloh, Russell House, Corinth, Hernando, Chickasaw Bayou, Arkansas Post, Snyder's Bluff, Champion Hill, assaults (two of them, May 19 and 22, 1863) on Vicksburg, siege of Vicksburg, lasting forty-nine days, Jackson, Tuscumbia, Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge, Kennesaw Mountain (July 22), Atlanta, and Ezra Church; in the last-named battle (July 28, 1864), he lost his right leg. He took part in eighteen battles, besides innumerable minor engagements; he was honorably discharged at the general hospital in Chicago, Jan. 5, 1865. In the History of the Regiment he is thus mentioned: "Livermore, a boy noted throughout the regiment for his irrepressible jollity and utter contempt for bullets, lost his right leg." After the war he learned the printing trade, and from 1869 to 1872 published a newspaper in Cortland. He subsequently moved to Binghamton and Syracuse, N. Y., and Washington, D. C., going to the last-named city Dec. 12, 1872, since which time he has been employed in the Government printing office in the capacity of compositor and proof-reader, which latter position he has held since July 1, 1881, and still holds. In June, 1894, he started a stationery store on the corner of First and H streets, Northwest, Washington, and this store is managed by his daughter Lillie. He is a member of George G. Meade Post No. 5, Washington, D. C., Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic; also a charter member of Encampment No. 69, Union Veteran Legion, Washington. Residence, Washington.

Child, born in Binghamton :

His father moved to Madison, Wis., when he was one year old, a year later moving to Polo, Ogle Co., Ill., where he lived and attended school until 1869, when he went to Cortland, N. Y., to learn the printer's trade in his brother's office. He left there in the fall of 1871 and went to Cleveland, Ohio, and worked that winter in Nevins Brothers' job printing office. In the spring of 1872, owing to poor health, he moved to Clarksville, Mo., becoming a fisherman on the Mississippi river. He sold out in 1879 and moved to Fall Creek, and worked for Jesse Rankin two years, and in the spring of 1881 went to North Dakota. He worked one year as a farm hand and took up a Government claim in Sargent Co., No. Dak. The next year he went on to his claim and lived there until the winter of 1885, when he went to Casselton. He remained there until the next season when he obtained a situation as farm manager, but it proved unprofitable to him. In the summer of 1886 he worked as gardener and his wife as housekeeper for a friend at Maple River, No. Dak. In the spring of 1887 he was again employed as farm manager near Casselton, and remained there two years when he again moved on to his land near Harlem, No. Dak. He sold out in Oct., 1890 and moved to Fairfield, Spokane Co., Wash., where he rents a farm belonging to his father-in-law. His mother lives with him.

He was educated at the public schools and was graduated with honors at the high school, Providence, in 1871. For a few years he was engaged with his father as a travelling salesman and accountant. In 1888 he went West and located at Marion, Ind., and Lima, Ohio. Here he was partner of Mr. Burr Sweetser who successfully operated and conducted Sweetser's Bank, now the First National Bank of Marion. During his ten years of active life in that section he became Mr. Sweetser's manager in various lines of successful theatrical enterprises, becoming the general manager of Furrot's Opera House in Lima. At the expiration of the lease he moved back to Providence, and opened a private banking house, of which he is still the head.

WALTER ELIOT<sup>9</sup> THWING (Anne,<sup>8</sup> Mchitable,<sup>7</sup> Edward,<sup>6</sup> Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Jonathan,<sup>3</sup> Samuel,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 27, 1848, in Roxbury. He was educated at private schools until 1861, when he entered the Roxbury Latin School, whence he was graduated in 1868, and entered Harvard College, but remained there only through the freshman year. In August, 1869, he entered the counting-room of his father as clerk. On Dec. 26, 1870, he sailed in the ship "Daniel Marcy" from New York, bound for San Francisco. The only lands seen on the voyage were the island of Ferdinand Noronha, off Brazil, Feb. 11, 1871; Cape St. Diego at the extremity of Tierra del Fuego, Mar. 23, 1871; Cape Horn, a couple of days later, and Point Reyes, off the coast of California, the day of arrival at San Francisco. The only incidents worth noting were the rescue of a boy who fell overboard, and the capture of a shark, which for a time had the deck to himself before he was killed. The voyage occupied one hundred and seventy days. He passed three months in California, during which time he visited Los Angeles, then chiefly inhabited by Mexicans; in its vicinity there were few cultivated ranches, and those chiefly orange groves. He also visited the Yosemite valley, going into it on horseback as the only road was a bridle path. He sailed from San Francisco, Sept. 30, 1871, in the steamer "Great Republic," for Japan, where he passed a couple of weeks visiting the ports of Yokohama, Yedo, Kobe, and Nagasaki only, as the rest of the country was then closed to all foreigners. Then he visited in turn Shanghai, Hong-Kong and Canton, in China; Singapore, Penang, Point de Galle, on the island of Ceylon; Bombay, Calcutta, Benares and Allahabad, in India; sailing from Bombay for Suez, stopping a few hours at Aden, then through Cairo and Alexandria, in Egypt, and thence through the chief countries and cities of Europe and England, reaching Boston, Oct. 16, 1872, perhaps the youngest young man up to that time to have travelled around the world alone.

In January, 1878, he sailed for Jamaica, where he passed two months. He has visited many of the large Western cities and has made the trip through the Great Lakes to Duluth.

He is a life member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society; an associate member and honorary vice-president for Massachusetts, of the Old Northwest Genealogical Society of Columbus, Ohio; secretary of the John Eliot Club of Roxbury, and a member of the Unitarian Club of Boston. He is the author of the Thwing Genealogy and of the present work. Residence, 65 Beach Glen street, Roxbury.

- Page 214, No. 317, "Michigan Biographies" says Fidus Livermore died May 22, 1880.
- Page 281, under 443, iv, "Samantha" should be Semantha.
- Page 349, sixth line from foot, under 615, in the ancestry of his third wife, Ellen Cornelia Williams, for "Thomas<sup>s</sup> Livermore, Samuel?" read "Joseph<sup>s</sup> Livermore, John?" See iii, under No. 25 on page 25.
- Page 386, under 706, for "Raimond" read "Raymond."
- Page 412, under 783, ii, last line, omit "(Ward)"; she was Edith Gertrude Livermore.

THE numbers against the names refer to the page where the names occur. A name has but a single reference to the page on which it appears, though it may be repeated there; care should therefore be taken to look for such repetition.

Middle names are indicated by initials only [for example, Mary Amelia and Mary Anna are both indexed under Mary A.]; when given in full they show the surname (maiden or otherwise) at the time of marriage. Where the context shows that this surname is the maiden name, it is parenthesized; otherwise the parentheses are omitted.
